Matthew's three-peak tribute to beloved mum

Matthew Warwick be tackling the Three Peaks Challenge in memory of his mum

Fundraiser tackles gruelling challenge for St Clare Hospice

Matthew Warwick with his mum Kay

By Martin Ford
martin.ford@hertssexnews.co.uk

A FUNDRAISER will be tackling the Three Peaks Challenge in memory of his mum, who died at St Clare Hospice less than a year ago.

Matthew Warwick, 24, from Harlow will be aiming to climb the UK's three highest peaks in under 24 hours just a few days on from the first anniversary of his mum's death.

Kay Warwick was admitted to St Clare Hospice in June last year and died on July 8, aged 60.

Moments

Matthew said: "St Clare was such a lovely place for me and all the family to come and be with my mum during our last moments together.

"They gave us an environment where we could come and stay as long as we liked.

"We all invaded her room for two weeks – all ten of us – and we'd have dinners in the conservatory and even sleep there.

"Everyone that we met was excellent. The unconditional care and support that they offered my mum was also offered to the rest of our family too, which is what makes St Clare stand out."

Matthew was inspired to take on the challenge for St Clare Hospice after the care he and his family received.

He will tackle Britain's tallest mountain, the 4,409 ft Ben Nevis in Scotland, first.

Matthew will then travel to Scafell Pike (3,209 ft) in the Lake District and finish by climbing Mount Snowdon (3,560 ft) in Wales.

He hopes to complete the challenge in under 24 hours.

Matthew said: "My mum, my family and I have all had such great support from St Clare – I really feel like I want to give something back.

"That's why I decided to do the Three Peaks Challenge for St Clare.

"I went on my first hike four years ago and caught the bug for it – I absolutely loved it. When the opportunity came up to take on the Three Peaks Challenge.

"I knew it was the perfect way to raise awareness of St Clare, and show people how the care isn't just for patients, but for their families as well.

"It's a massive challenge for me personally, too.

Challenge

"I've always wanted to do this challenge, and to be able to raise money for somewhere that's really close to my heart is such a great motivation."

Matthew is taking on the challenge with six friends from Harlow, Tom Richards, Joe Mortimer, John Owen, Rowan Owen, Paul Richards and Fay Chapman.

The group will set off on the climb at 5am on Friday, July 14.

Lister House set to become town's largest health centre

LISTER House will become Harlow's largest health centre in a £7.2m scheme.

Derek Fenny, chairman of Harlow Health Centres Trust (HHCT), announced at the group's annual general meeting last week that building work will be completed in autumn 2018.

The centre, in Abercrombie Way, Harlow, will serve an estimated 20,000 patients.

It will contain a GP surgery, dental services and a pharmacy, as well as doctor training facilities.

HHCT, a charity trust, submitted a planning application on August 5, 2013, but it has taken almost four years to be finalised.

A spokesman from HHCT said: "The project has taken a long time to finalise.

"This has meant that the charity has had to use a large amount of its own money and will not be able to support health initiatives by way of grants, during the development."

HHCT also oversees Keats House in Stanstead Abbots as well as Florence Nightingale, The Addison, Nuffield House, Osler House and Sydenham House in Harlow.

Three arrested in B&Q car park on grooming charges

POLICE arrested three men at the B&Q car park in Harlow on suspicion of sexual grooming.

Following a sting from self-styled paedophile-hunting group CSE Interceptors, officers arrested a 67-year-old man at around 10am on May 16 in the home improvement store's car park on Howard Way.

He was later released under investigation.

Police also arrested two men, both 77, at 10.10am and 3pm the next day at the same spot, after another CSE Interceptors operation.

They have been released on police bail until Friday, August 4, pending further enquiries.

VIOLENT HARLOW: Move comes after teen is arrested for attempted murder

Eyewitness reveals the aftermath of stabbing

THE shocking aftermath of a stabbing in Harlow has been revealed by an eyewitness.

Police were called to reports of a man stabbed in the face on Tripton Road at around 10.05am on Sunday.

He was taken to hospital with injuries not believed to be life-threatening, while Tripton Road was closed until 1pm.

A resident of nearby street Bushey Croft, who asked to remain anonymous, arrived on the scene shortly after the knife attack took place.

She said: "There was one car stopped on the side of the road. A man was lying on the street for a while. He had blood on the side of his face.

Ambulance

"Then an ambulance and police came. They got him to stand up to go into the ambulance. There were forensic police checking the car.

"When they put him into the ambulance, the man shouted: 'my car'.

"Paramedics calmed him down. He was a bit shaken up. I hope he is all right."

The woman added that the victim appeared to be in his 30s or 40s, and was "well-dressed".

This latest attack comes two days after a man in his 40s was knifed in Staple Tye. There was also a stabbing in Twenty One Bar on May 29.

After the Staple Tye attack, police vowed to crack down on antisocial behaviour in the area.

District Commander for Harlow, Matt Cornish, assured residents "significant" community policing resources are in place to deal with the issue.

■ Anyone with any information is asked to contact Essex Police on 101 quoting incident 357 of 25/06 or Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

Teens let out on bail

THREE teenage boys arrested after a man was stabbed in Harlow have been released on bail.

The victim, believed to be in his 40s, was walking with a friend on Southern Avenue towards Staple Tye at around 9.30pm on Friday at the time of the incident.

The man became involved in an argument with a group of people and was then stabbed in the chest, before being rushed to hospital with injuries not believed to be life-threatening.

A 15-year-old boy was arrested on suspicion of attempted murder, while two other boys, aged 13 and 15, were arrested on suspicion of assault.

All three have now been released on bail until July 22.

■ Anyone with any information about the incident is asked to contact Essex Police on 101 quoting incident 1282 of 23/06.

Alternatively, contact Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

Police on the scene of a recent stabbing in the East Gate area of Harlow

Police vow to crack down on antisocial behaviour

By Sophie Finnegan
star@hertsessexnews.co.uk

POLICE in Harlow have vowed to crack down on antisocial behaviour after a spate of crimes in the area which most recently saw a 15-year-old boy arrested for attempted murder.

Chief Inspector Matt Cornish, District Commander for Harlow, said a "significant" amount of community policing resources is in place to help tackle antisocial behaviour, with officers encouraging people to talk openly with police.

Just this week, a man in his 40s was stabbed in Staple Tye following an altercation with a group of people, which led police to arrest a 15-year-old boy on suspicion of attempted murder.

A 13-year-old and 15-year-old were also arrested on suspicion of assault.

This latest attack follows a stabbing earlier this month inside Twenty One Bar, a stabbing in April in nearby East Gate and a man being taken to hospital last month after a suspected assault in the same street.

Reassurance

Concern from residents sparked reassurance from Harlow Conservative councillor Michael Garnett, who earlier this month said: "We are going through a period where we have had a lot of assaults.

"Police are doing an excellent job but they cannot be everywhere.

"I think society has taken a backwards step. The town centre must be reported as safe but one needs to be careful."

Police in the town have now taken steps to reassure the public that action will be taken against anti-social behaviour but also asked for "help from local shops to support us."

Chief Inspector Cornish said: "We are aware of concerns relating to anti-social behaviour in parts of Harlow, including the Staple Tye area, we have been working closely with residents and shop owners through a number of different methods to tackle the issues presented.

"I want to reassure residents, customers and shop owners it is something we take very seriously.

"We have had a plan to tackle the issues in place for sometime, this plan is on-going and relies on the help of the community.

Significant

"A significant amount of community policing resources along with help from local shops to support us have been involved in the process so far as well as youth ambassadors attending the area every week for the past few months.

"I would encourage the Harlow community to continue to engage with our officers.

"No-one should be subjected to behaviour which leaves them with concern for their safety or welfare where they live."

Chief Inspector Matt Cornish says he wants to reassure residents of Harlow

Gang armed with poles and 'sword' target shop

A SHOP in Harlow has been robbed by three men armed with scaffolding poles and what was believed to be a sword.

The incident occurred at the Co-op in Maunds Hatch at around 11pm on Sunday, June 25.

Three men armed with the scaffolding poles and a "sword" entered the store wearing gloves and balaclavas.

They forced staff to open a safe and made off with a four-figure sum of cash.

No one was injured in the incident.

■ Police are appealing for anyone with any information to come forward by contacting Essex Police on 101 and quote incident 1186.

Alternatively, people can contact Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

Two jailed after crack and heroin discovered in flat

Court told one-year-old child in room while 'wraps' were prepared

By Tommy Wathen
star@hertsexnews.co.uk

TWO dealers of class A drugs have been sentenced to a total of more than six years in prison following a successful operation by the West Operation Raptor team.

Chelmsford Crown Court heard how police officers were patrolling in the Longfields area of Harlow on Thursday, January 12, this year when they noticed a number of individuals leaving a property which was known to be linked to the supply of drugs.

After being approached by officers, one man fled the scene and officers carried out a search on the property.

Once inside, the police found 25 year-old pair Ajaun Riley and Ishmail Kelly on a bed preparing small blue wraps of drugs, while a one year-old child was present.

Officers searched both men and the whole room and found 96 wraps of crack cocaine and 24 wraps of heroin.

Kelly also had £345 cash in his pocket too.

Scales

While searching the rest of the house, officers uncovered various mobile phones, scales and bags used to weigh and package drugs, more than £1,600 in cash and a CS gas canister.

Ajaun Riley, of Hood Close, Croydon, admitted two counts of possessing a Class A drug with intent to supply when he appeared at Chelmsford Crown Court. He was jailed for two years and eight months.

Ishmail Kelly, from Camberwell in South London, was found guilty following a trial at Chelmsford Crown Court of two counts of possessing a Class A drug with intent to supply. He was jailed for three years and six months on Friday, June 9.

Following the sentencing Sgt James Paget of the West Operation Raptor team said: "Given the amount of Class A drugs found in the property along with Kelly and Riley, it was clearly being used as a base for their dealing operation.

"They were found in a bedroom packaging drugs ready to be sold on the streets with little to no regard for the child present.

"Thankfully we have now removed them from the community which they are blighting and they are now safely behind bars."

An 18-year-old woman from South East London, an 18-year-old man and a 22-year-old man, all arrested at the time, have not been charged.

During the month of May officers across the West of Essex made 21 arrests, recovered £48,400 of criminal cash, charged eight people with drug-related offences, searched five properties, seized £40,000 worth of cocaine and 165 cannabis plants.

Det Insp James Freeman said: "Across the West of Essex our teams are continuing to achieve significant results, disrupting drug-dealing and gang-related crime and are continuing to make the streets safer.

Results

"I would urge the community to continue to support us by making sure they tell us about drug or gang related crime in their area. These results show that we do and will take action."

If you have information about drug or gang-related crime in your community contact Essex Police on 101 or Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

The police operation 75 arrested for drink and drug driving

ESSEX Police have arrested 75 people in just three weeks as part of a month-long crackdown on drink and drug drivers.

The force is focusing on stopping motorists driving under the influence throughout June.

In three weeks, 52 have been arrested on suspicion of drink driving and 23 on suspicion of drug driving.

Adam Pipe, casualty reduction manager for Essex Police, said: "Drink or drug driving seriously impairs your ability behind the wheel and can have devastating consequences.

"Nobody wants to experience how it feels to lose a loved one so I would urge anyone who has any information about a drink or drug driver to contact us.

"I also want to re-iterate that anyone who is arrested during this campaign and is convicted will be named, shamed, and their photo will be put out to the public."

To report a drink or drug driver call police on 101 or Crimestoppers on 0800 555 111.

Check-in @ Stansted exhibition brought together 70 Essex companies to discuss Firms gather at airport event to help business really take-off

By Huw Wales

huw.wales@hertsessexnews.co.uk

MORE than 70 businesses gathered at Stansted Airport last week to network with each other and promote what they do to the public.

The Check-in @ Stansted Business Exhibition had a wide range of businesses from a variety of sectors promoting themselves from 10am until 4pm last Thursday (June 22).

Gateway

The exhibition was sponsored by The Stansted Airport Chamber of Commerce (SACC) and The Sowerby Group.

Julie Budden, chairman of the SACC, said: "Check-in @ Stansted

The Hilton Hotels representatives at their stand is the only business expo to take place at London Stansted Airport.

"A key gateway within a region that is growing year on year in terms of business offerings."

"People often comment on the quality of visitors and you can tell that by the return of many exhibitors since the very first exhibition."

"Each year we try to add more to the exhibition to offer exhibitors, sponsors and visitors more business opportunities and free advice for both business and personal use."

The event included speakers like Adam Stott, an entrepreneur and owner of Big Cars, Rebecca Jackson, a championship-winning racing driver, and BBC Apprentice star Richard Woods.

Involved

Sam Berry, from Medigold Health said: "Medigold Health was delighted to be involved in this year's Check-in @ Stansted."

"This was our first year at the exhibition and I would highly recommend any company thinking of working with Stansted Airport to get involved."

"Not only did the Check-in @ Stansted Expo provide us with valuable networking opportunities and brand awareness on the airport, but it was the additional benefits Medigold Health received in terms of local press and social media coverage both in the lead up and after the exhibition which has been invaluable in raising our profile, given we are opening an on-site occupational health clinic at Stansted Airport this July."

There were also students from

Harlow College who were working the floor at the event to help point visitors in the right direction and to hand out goodie bags.

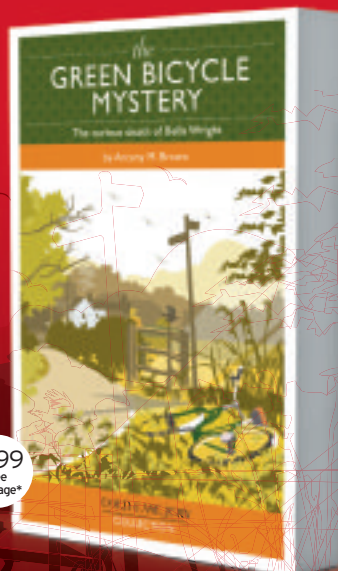

Chris Wiggan, Stansted Airport's head of external affairs, said: "London Stansted was delighted to support the Check-in @ Stansted event which provides an excellent opportunity for local companies to further grow and develop.

"The airport is a key catalyst for growth and jobs in the East of England and the UK, employing around 12,000 people across 200 on-airport companies contributing over £1 billion to the local economy.

"With a growing international airport on the doorstep, this region has a lot to offer and is at the heart of driving forward growth and opportunities and this is where organisations such as the Stansted Chamber of Commerce and events like Check-in @ Stansted really can help."

Guests at the exhibition were able to try an F1 simulator, a scalextric and a magic mirror.

The businesses were also raising money towards the Essex Retired Police Dogs Fund.

The success of this year's event has meant that bookings are already taking place for the 2018 business exhibition on June 21, 2018.

Hundreds line the streets as town's carnival goes with bang

Human cannonball float adds to the fun

HUNDREDS of people lined the streets to watch the colourful Ongar Carnival procession on Sunday.

The event, organised by the Ongar Round Table, saw a long stream of floats and community groups parade through the town.

Fancy

Youngsters from Moves and Grooves Ongar, local Scout groups and primary schools all came together in fancy dress to put on a colourful show.

Organisers were hoping it would be the biggest procession yet for the carnival, which included a carnival queen and her entourage, who held beautiful bouquets provided by Capital Flowers.

Children taking part in the carnival.

The parade started at St Peter's Avenue, travelled along the High Street and finished at Greensted Road.

After the procession, visitors attended a fete at Chipping Ongar Primary School where they enjoyed games and refreshments. A spokesperson for Ongar Round Table said: "We want to say a big thank you to everyone who came along to enter and watch the carnival. We certainly had a great day."

Disabled Kim's dream of flying needs cash support

Woman who had leg amputated needs £1k to complete pilot course

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A HARLOW woman is taking to the skies after her dreams of joining the army were dashed when she lost her right leg.

Kim Jaeger, of Cocks Spinney, has launched an online JustGiving campaign to help raise the £1,600 needed to complete a disabled flying course and obtain a pilot's licence.

Her leg was amputated after a small cut became infected, but she is looking to overcome her personal devastation with a new goal.

Researched

She said: "As I could no longer go into the army I researched possible activities and careers I could maybe do and I came across disabled flying.

"I used to dream of being a pilot and it was one of the reasons I wanted to join the army.

"I never thought I would be able to do anything special or get out and about after my amputation, but through many people's help and dedication, here I am."

Ms Jaeger has completed 13 hours of flying training and

Kim Jaeger is reaching for the sky supported by the Douglas Bader foundation among others passed nine ground exams. Her course has been funded by the Douglas Bader Foundation and Freedom in the Air.

But she needs more capital to contribute to the course and move onto the next stage of her training as she seeks to turn her hobby into a career.

So far she has raised £585.

She continued: "To complete my licence I have to complete my fundraising, which is proving very hard.

"I know it's asking a lot but any amount at all would be greatly appreciated."

Hospital location has no Local Plan place

THE possibility of a new hospital in Harlow could cause problems for the local plan because it isn't known where it might be built.

The Local Plan, which is aimed to provide a template for Harlow's growth for the next 20 years, cannot plan for the new hospital because the size of it or whether it will be built is still unknown.

During a meeting of Harlow Council's cabinet on Thursday (June 22) councillors were told that the council couldn't plan for the new hospital until the Government had committed to the new hospital plan.

Site

Councillor Danny Purton told councillors that it wasn't clear where any new hospital might be built after a report recommended another site would be needed.

He said: "They indicated their best option was for a new site. It is going to be a different type of site.

"The current hospital was designed and built in the 1960s. Any new hospital would be a campus type site instead.

"Until the Government makes some commitments to find a new site, obviously we can't plan for where it might go because we don't know exactly how big it is going to be and when it might come into existence."

Thought you couldn't afford a new car?

Think again. Right now, you can drive away a 17 plate pre-registered Vauxhall Viva for just £99 deposit and then only £99 per month with NO interest charges to pay whatsoever.

Maybe you are looking for a second car for a family member or just looking for a change? Why buy an older used car when you can have a newer more economical one like the Vauxhall Viva. With group 3 insurance and a 3 year manufacturer's warranty – so no expensive bills to pay out! It's a no brainer. We have a limited number available on this industry leading deal so don't delay.

May is right choice but the Tory party needs reform, insists MP

Halfon gives 'honest' assessment after increasing his majority at general election

By William Mata

william.mata@hertssexnews.co.uk

HARLOW'S MP has backed Theresa May to continue as Prime Minister, but has admitted his party needs to reform.

In an "honest" interview Robert Halfon confessed he disagrees with some DUP policies and thought the "strong and stable" soundbite did not reflect the Conservative message.

In Harlow's general election count on June 8, the MP increased his vote share to 54 per cent, but his celebrations were muted as the Tories lost 13 seats and their Parliamentary majority.

Result

"I got a good result," he said. "You would think I would be saying how wonderful it is but I am being honest about my party and saying this because I want us to be better."

The Conservative-penned and Brexit-heavy Queen's Speech contained fewer Conservative manifesto pledges than expected.

Mr Halfon said: "If I am honest I am relieved that the social care bill did not make it in. I think we needed a lot more discussion and understanding of the issues."

About the DUP, he added: "I do

Harlow MP Robert Halfon has been critical of his party believe a lot of policies were but that message did not get across."

He said examples of these include a commitment to degree apprenticeships, the national living wage and tax cuts on national insurance contributions for those looking after the disabled.

Xhead

Mr Halfon reaffirmed his desire for the Tories to be rebranded as the Workers' Party with a new ladder logo.

On Mrs May, who he supported to be Conservative Party leader, he said: "I backed her because I think she is authentic and strong. I would not have a change of leader now. It would create more instability."

"I think the criticism (surrounding her involvement after the Grenfell Tower) was out of order. She is not the kind of person who will weep in public but that does not mean she does not care."

A second election later this year is unlikely, according to the MP, but he committed to standing again in Harlow next time.

"I think it would be my duty to stand again," he said. "I would like to help build an even better Harlow, championing the cause for a new hospital."

not agree with some of their policies on ethical issues. I have heard about things they believe. They are more traditional and socially conservative.

"It needs to be remembered (Labour's then leader) Gordon Brown tried to deal with them in 2010.

"I think they will agree a deal on a case by case basis. Theresa May has made it clear that this has nothing to do with Conservative policy."

On the back of the election Mr Halfon lost his position as Skills and Apprenticeships Minister in a cabinet reshuffle, a setback he said he has "taken on the chin".

"I am still the MP for the greatest town in Britain." he said.

"I am still a Conservative, the party is like a family to me, but I can be more independent," he said, referencing his opposition to the planned fuel duty rise in David Cameron's term.

Mrs May was noted for repeating her "strong and stable" sound-bite throughout the campaign, but Mr Halfon feels a more caring side to the party should have been put across too.

"Some people believe we are not on their side and we are the party of the well off. People want a strong and stable prime minister but also a Government they can regard as compassionate and I

Bus firm criticised as service is scrapped

ARRIVA has been criticised for scrapping an early morning bus service into central Harlow.

The number 4, which journeys from Lutton Bush to Bush Fair and terminates in town, is used by commuters looking to connect at Harlow Town railway station.

A timetable amendment, which came into force on Sunday, June 4, has cut the 5.53am, which means the earliest bus now leaves at 6.23am and arrives at 6.38am.

Andy Parnham, 47, of Bush Fair, has impaired vision and feels vulnerable in crowds so gets the earliest connection possible on his commutes to London for work.

Although the bus only leaves half an hour later the difference in connection times means he gets to work more than an hour later than before, at around 8.30am.

He said: "There was no consultation or warning given regarding this change.

Removed

"The new timetable was not actually posted to the route until later (on the first day) leaving myself and my fellow travellers to assume the bus had simply not turned up.

"It wasn't until I returned home and made inquiries that I discovered this service had been permanently removed from the timetable.

"It is now not possible to make this journey early enough to avoid the crowds."

Arriva used to run the number 4 all the way to the station but dropped the extra loop some time ago.

Mr Parnham works for HM Revenue and Customs near Southwalk Bridge in London.

He said it takes longer for his 2.6 mile journey to the station than the 28-mile train ride into the capital.

But because of his vision he is unable to walk or drive to the railway station.

He continued: "In the current climate when we are encouraged to reduce our carbon footprint and use public transport how can it be that we are forced to drive or use taxis?"

Arriva has been contacted for comment but is yet to respond.

Friends set for an epic 10,000-mile adventure

Trio will drive through 21 countries to raise money for charities

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

THREE friends with no mechanical knowledge between them are preparing to drive more than 10,000 miles to Siberia.

Sam McLaren, 25, of Old Harlow, and mates George Jones and Matt Proctor, will travel through 21 countries in an £800 Daihatsu Hijet as part of the Mongol Rally.

The trio will plant a tree in each nation they pass through and are looking to raise a combined £1,500 for charities Cool Earth and JR 4 JR.

With their start date of July 18 fast approaching, Mr McLaren said any nerves have not yet hit him as he prepares for a journey that will take at least two months and possibly three.

He said: "People who do the rally (which sets off from Goodwood House in West Sussex) are keen mechanics but we have no idea.

"I only recently learnt how to change a wheel so it is going to be a learning curve. We are maths and science nerds. But I am feeling really positive.

"We have been so busy with preparing, it is the calm before the storm and I have not felt any nerves yet."

There is no official route for the Mongol Rally and the event is not strictly a race.

Xhead

The team, who have named themselves Britain's Next Top Mongol, have chosen a route based on the scenery. They can expect four desert stretches and seven mountain ranges.

Mr McLaren has been allowed three months' leave from employers PriceWaterhouseCoopers (PWC) to complete the challenge.

He continued: "Some of the roads are going to be really rough and there is a lot of off-road driving. Racing would be suicidal. We

A bit of a trek - the 10,144 mile journey mapped on Google have picked the most beautiful route for us that takes us through the largest variety of places.

"I think it is going to be quite tough."

The van, which will have been decorated specially by artist friends, will be the lads' home for the period and the trio will take shifts to drive, navigate and sleep.

They will drive through countries including Germany, Poland, Romania, Iran and Mongolia on their fundraising mission - sometimes going days without seeing a petrol station or shop.

The finish point is Ulan-Ube in southern Russia, some 10,144 miles away from Goodwood where the lads will drive to from Harlow.

"We are taking lots of tin food," Mr McLaren added. "And we have got a roof rack to carry petrol.

"I think the Gobi Desert will be the most challenging. It is going to be really hot at day and really cold at night. We are spontaneous and adventurous guys. We heard about the rally and it seemed like a really cool idea."

Xhead

All three are passionate about stopping climate change and have so far raised £621. They are supporting Cool Earth, which works alongside indigenous communities to stop rainforest destruction and JR 4 JR, which supports the brain injury unit at the John Radcliffe Hospital in Oxford.

New prints shop aims to have it covered in the Harvey Centre

'We have had amazing feedback and are overwhelmed by the compliments'

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A NEW art shop "adds something totally different," to Harlow's Harvey Centre, according to its co-manager.

Kool Canvas opened on the first floor of the shopping centre, above HMV, on Saturday June 17 and sells prints and designs for affordable prices.

Jan Gales, co-manager alongside Chris Campbell, said: "We feel Harlow needed something different."

"I have lived in Harlow all my life and I have seen changes and shops come and go."

"People have said they have not seen this before."

"We just wanted to bring something different to the Harvey Centre."

She continued: "It has been not bad so far but quieter than expected."

Promotion

"But people do not know we are here. It is going to take a bit of promotion on our part to make people aware that this is a new shop."

Mr Campbell, who is from Colchester, is a sports photographer and has a lot of contacts in the trade which has seen the gallery take an early theme.

However, a wide selection of work is expected to pass through.

"At the moment the selection is male dominated as it was focusing on father's day," added Ms Gales, referencing the images of Formula One and other sports adorning the walls.

"We are introducing a bit more stock with prints that will appeal to all - we do the whole range."

Kool print on canvas but also aluminium, acrylic and wood. Customers can order a print and complete some shopping before coming back to collect it backed and framed.

Shoppers can also order in designs.

Ms Gales continued: "We are not overly expensive and people can afford what we do."

"We do not want to charge the earth for people so we cap our prices at a reasonable cost. The most expensive, I think, is £95."

She added: "We have had amazing feedback from everybody who has come in."

"We are overwhelmed by the compliments we have had."

"We had a customer who said this is the best thing that has happened to Harlow in years."

Towie star Amy Childs with some of the fundraisers who contributed to the £3,064.45 total

One Great Day at the Harvey Centre for children's hospital

AN incredible £3,064.45 was raised for Great Ormond Street at One Great Day fundraiser in the Harvey Centre.

The Harlow shopping mall held craft workshops and a sponsored leg wax on Saturday, June 17, while The Only Way is Essex (Towie) star Amy Childs paid a visit.

The ITV2 personality said: "I'm thrilled to be involved with this very special event."

"Great Ormond Street Hospital provides incredible support for poorly children and it's an honour to attend this event at the Harvey Centre and meet the Towie fans."

Construction students are showing design excellence

HARLOW College BTEC construction students completed a design challenge laid on by Linden Homes.

Two members of the construction firm tasked young people from the Velizy Avenue centre with redesigning a double garage as a sales office for a real-life client.

Adam French and Danny Edwards, of Linden Homes, then gave the students feedback.

Mr French said: "It's been so interesting and illuminating for both sides."

"We've been really impressed by the designs the students have come up with."

Pear Tree Mead remains in Ofsted's good books

PEAR Tree Mead Academy staff are celebrating the Harlow school's "good" Ofsted result.

The primary, in Pear Tree Mead, was the subject of a short inspection on May 16 and retained its rating achieved in September 2011.

A glowing report praised the work of head teacher Christine Peden and said the school's motto of "inspire, encourage, believe" rang true.

Mrs Peden said: "We are so proud of our recent Ofsted report.

"The report highlights the strengths of the school and we are pleased to have had these recognised."

"The team work hard to make the school the best possible place to educate our children and prepare them for their futures."

"I would like to thank them for their dedication to the children."

Bereavement service is launched by TV regular

TV personality Jeff Brazier launched St Clare Hospice's Children's Bereavement Service on Tuesday last week.

More than 50 supporters visited the Hastingwood charity with Lord Petre, the Lord Lieutenant of Essex, also in attendance at the event.

The bereavement service will provide services to support relatives and friends of all of those cared for by St Clare.

Mr Brazier, a regular on ITV show This Morning, said:

"Having access to bereavement support for the whole family, before, during and after the loss of a loved one, is so important."

"It is incredible that the hospice is now able to extend its services, and to think of all those children that will benefit from the new one-to-one care and family therapy is really special."

SOUND OUT

LOUD AND PROUD

N May 1997, as Tony Blair walked into 10 Downing Street, while Britons were revelling in Eurovision glory and Donald Trump divorced his second wife, two teenage boys, fresh from taking their GCSEs, were sitting in a sunny bedroom in Leicester recording music.

Twenty years later, Labour are back in opposition, Britain's Eurovision efforts appear futile, and Mr Trump is the controversial leader of the free world.

But what of those 16-year-olds? They've just scored their fifth consecutive number one album and, like they do almost every summer, are preparing to headline a major festival.

Love or hate Kasabian, they've confounded the cull of British rock bands borne from Britpop, and with their latest record, For Crying Out Loud, arriving to critical and popular success, it's difficult to ignore their longevity.

"It's mad that we had just left school," says Tom Meighan, sitting alongside his best friend of those two-decades, Sergio Pizzorno.

"It would have been this time almost exactly," he adds, "It was during our GCSEs in April, in the early summer. I was working in a Doc Martins factory and I remember going to Serge's on the bus and we were recording.

"It was dead sunny outside, I can still smell the garden, I can see it all now, that was 20 years ago."

Sergio exhales. "Whoosh, gone." They are very different from each other, these two rock stars.

Frontman Tom leans forward and back again, eyes darting around the room. He quizzes Sergio on what to say and aims most responses at his bandmate, who is calmer, relaxed.

Tom cackles madly in response to a question about the contrasting year they endured in 2016.

While tall, skinny guitarist and songwriter Sergio wed his longtime girlfriend, Tom split from his own long-term partner. He admits the upbeat nature of Sergio's writing on For Crying Out Loud kept him going.

"I don't know where I would be if I hadn't have heard Acid House or any of the beautiful songs that Serge has written," he says.

"It saved me, It really did, it gave me hope. Everything was negative in my life and it picked me up and gave me a new lease. I just needed it and something to focus on."

"I wrote the first 10 tracks really quickly," says Sergio as he volunteers an explanation of the album's journey.

"That's key to what this album is, it's very concise and it is a feel-good uplifting record and I think if you make an album over a year you go through more ups and downs."

Notably, that short period early last year coincided with the band's beloved Leicester City upsetting the odds and winning the Premier League title.

The cheerful mantra of the album is insistent. As one reviewer wrote, it can feel a little like someone shouting "cheer up love!" down your ear for an hour. But it's largely been well received, although one negative was the reaction to You're In Love With A Psycho. A mental health charity called the use of Psycho and the track's accompanying video, set in a psychiatric ward, "damaging and disappointing".

Unaware he is mocking Mr Trump, Tom calls their reaction "sad", while Sergio reasons "it's how people round our way talk."

He adds, "It's when I say to my missus I'm gonna get home at 12 at night and then I don't come home till Tuesday and she rings her mates and says 'ah he's gone psycho I've not seen him all day'. They're completely taking it the wrong way."

A few weeks before the album's release, the band took over Kentish Town Forum for a three-night residency and will headline Reading and Leeds Festivals for the second time in August where they tease a "surprise" is in store, but won't elaborate.

They've also headlined Glastonbury twice. In an era where British bands are struggling to top the bills on the biggest stage, what do they think about the lack of guitar groups?

"It's beyond a massacre, devastation honestly mate," says Sergio.

"To headline a festival you need four or five big albums, you can't just have one album and go 'waah I'm not headlining'. Well f write another good album, then write another one then write another one. Then when you headline you've got 15 songs that are massive. You can't go on there with one good song because you're done."

Tom adds: "You've gotta remember it's not just purely your fans. If you go out there like a small man you get found out. But you just feel like a god, like a leader. Nothing can touch that. You feel like a giant."

Sergio differs. He has had to learn to enjoy the performance side and developed a headspace he slides into in the walk from dressing room to stage.

It turns out the four-piece have headlined a festival every year bar one since 2010 and the 20 years have taken their toll. "For every year we've been doing this," Sergio says, "we've lived five in that year, so we've lived a hundred years."

"F hell, yeah," agrees Tom. "A minute ago we were 16 years old," he laughs, "but we wouldn't still be doing it if we didn't love it."

■ For Crying Out Loud is out now. Kasabian headline Reading and Leeds Festivals this August.

DANNY AND THE CHAMPIONS OF THE WORLD - BRILLIANT LIGHT

BRILLIANT Light, the sixth album from Danny George Wilson's Danny and the Champions of the World, makes it easy to forget this is a British band. The Americana-inspired, alt country-cum-folk rockers may have formed in London, but they take you to places that make you think of Springsteen and Bon Jovi and a long-forgotten era - the 1980s.

A double album, it feels a bit long-winded at times, but it's a hearty old slog through twangy guitars, bluegrass-esque melodies and a few well-placed relaxing filler songs that take you easily from one foot-bopping track to the next.

Brilliant Light is an overall easy and breezy listen.

IMAGINE Dragons' third studio album is aptly named, because the Las Vegas foursome have Evolved perfectly in the music department. The first track, I Don't Know Why, feels like a fusion of their classic sounds from Night Visions with some new sounds and beats mixed in.

You'd be forgiven for thinking that Believer sounds in parts familiar to 2012's hit single Radioactive, but that's not a bad thing. In fact, it's a great anchor for where the band have come from and a reminder of how they have evolved, which tracks such as Walking The Wire and Yesterday are perfect examples of.

ALGIERS - THE UNDERSIDE OF POWER

THE American four-piece have taken inspiration from their time growing up in Atlanta and seeing the devastating effects of racism, prejudice and violence to produce their second album, which is a powerful expression of their anger at the rise of what they term "sinister politics".

Since their debut, Algiers have added former Bloc Party drummer Matt Tong to their number, whose contribution is the driving force behind many of the 12 tracks.

Catchy title track The Underside Of Power remains the most accessible, but there is plenty more in the way of Southern inspiration, gospel sounds and rousing protest lyrics for fans to get their teeth into.

The album also features a couple of instrumental tracks that evoke feelings of tension and unease, fleshing out the band's musical response to the dark times they are living in.

Actor and comedian Kevin Hart opens up on having a drug-addicted father, his sometimes violent relationship with his first wife and his attitude to fatherhood. HANNAH STEPHENSON reports

COMEDIAN, actor and self-confessed workaholic Kevin Hart may be just 5ft 4in but he is a towering figure in the entertainment world, thanks to his sell-out stand-up tours and movie box office hits such as Central Intelligence and Get Hard.

The 37-year-old earned $87.5m last year alone – the first comedian to make more than Jerry Seinfeld – according to Forbes magazine.

With two films coming out this year – Captain Underpants: The First Epic Movie, on July 28, and Jumanji: Welcome To The Jungle, in December, in which he stars with his pal Dwayne Johnson – followed by his first drama, Untouchable, with Bryan Cranston and Nicole Kidman, due in 2018, his career seems on an ever-upward spiral.

Make no mistake, though, success hasn't come easily. He has slogged his way to the top, from his early days of stand-up in dingy clubs to the gruelling tours he does today, while shoehorning in hectic film schedules and TV projects.

His life on and off the stage is charted in his memoir I Can't Make This Up: Life Lessons. There's been plenty of drama, professionally and privately, from his tough childhood and early days on the comedy circuit and his violent first marriage, to the much happier place he is in now.

His world today – living in the lap of luxury in Los Angeles, employing a team of bodyguards, travelling in fast cars and private jets – is a far cry from his childhood growing up in a tough neighbourhood in north Philadelphia, the son of alcoholic, drug-addict father Henry Witherspoon, who was in and out of jail.

He dedicates the book to his mother Nancy, a computer analyst at the University of Pennsylvania, who brought him and his older brother Kenneth up single-handedly.

A strict disciplinarian, she was determined to keep her children on the straight and narrow. Kevin has never done drugs and always knew the value of hard work.

"I'm the man I am today because of my mom," he says.

She died from cancer in 2007 but he's convinced she's now his angel, watching over him. His father, however, was a much different figure – lying, cheating, stealing, and with a serious cocaine habit.

Kevin recalls his dad bringing home a Labrador, which he'd stolen, giving it to him and his brother, before the owners appeared at the door to claim it back. On another occasion he nonchalantly announced he was leaving Nancy.

But Kevin says he got over his father's departure quickly and didn't hold on to any negative emotions.

"For as long as I can remember, I've had the ability to shoulder-shrug things – to just accept them, say 'OK', and get on with life," he writes.

Heart to HART

"The opposite of shoulder-shrugging would be to get depressed or angry and to hold on to those emotions for life."

In fact, he says his father's behaviour had a positive effect on him.

"When you have somebody who's done a lot of wrongs, you have a prime example in front of you of what not to do and what path not to follow. I think it affected me in a good way because I was able to use logic and common sense."

Today, he says his relationship with his father is good, and that he's off drugs and sober.

In difficult family times, laughter was always a release, he recalls.

Inspired by Eddie Murphy and Richard Pryor, Kevin's early days on the circuit were spent in grotty clubs doing poorly paid gigs up and down the country.

"Comedy was always an outlet. It was always something that I thought, 'Wow, I'm putting myself in a position to find positives out of negatives with laughter. Laughter ultimately heals our wounds.'"

Yet the ability to offset anger and emotion in his early life didn't always filter into his first marriage to Torrei, with whom he has two children, Heaven, 12, and Hendrix, nine.

It was, by his own admission, a torrid relationship. He was living a fast-paced lifestyle on the comedy circuit while Torrei was at home.

The arguments – and there were plenty – were usually alcohol-fuelled and ended in screaming matches and occasional violent outbursts in which the police were called – by both parties.

They'd break up, have flings with other people, then get back together.

Kevin started working these incidents into his shows, using comic exaggeration of scenes such as him blubbing to the police to save him from his girlfriend.

That's when he made his breakthrough, choosing situations he found himself in and his responses to them.

The pair divorced in 2011.

It's a period he doesn't relish and doesn't want to dwell on.

"I don't look back. You should never look back in life, you should only look forward. Those things happen for a reason. You learn from them and you move on."

"There's nothing I want to rewrite or change. Any bumps you take down the road make you smarter and wiser. I welcome those things."

He says his relationship with Torrei is now cordial.

"She's the mother of my kids, so we cannot not be friends. We are raising kids. Of course it took time to get over the break-up. It's not just going to happen overnight – you're human."

"But you have to be smart and put kids first. They have nothing to do with your problems."

Last year Kevin married Eniko Parrish. They are expecting their first child, a boy, and he says his two children are excited about having a baby brother.

"I'm pumped up, man. My wife is ecstatic, which makes me ecstatic. I'm glad I'm having a boy, so the name Hart lives on."

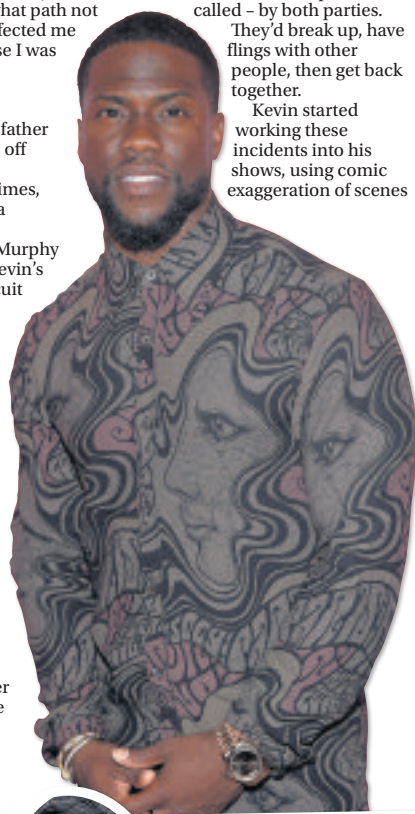

As for fatherhood, he says he won't do anything differently this time.

"If things ain't broke, don't fix 'em," he says. "I'm present, I'm around and I'm very much in my kids' life. That's all you can really ask for and that you give them as much time as possible. Time is the most important thing."

With more films coming out and another stand-up tour scheduled for 2018, Kevin shows no signs of running out of steam. His career ambitions know no bounds.

"I want to become a mogul. To do that you've got to continue to grow, rise to the occasion. I want to do so much more – producing, directing, writing, acting, dramas, comedies, investing, starting my own network."

GREATEST HITS by Laura Barnett, W&N, £12.99 (ebook £6.99)

THIS follow-up to journalist Laura Barnett's acclaimed debut novel The Versions Of Us, is a deftly woven tale of love, life and loss.

As she launches a new album after a three-decade hiatus, acclaimed singer-songwriter Cass Wheeler looks back on her career and her life.

After childhood abandonment by her mother and teenage wayward years, Cass finds her voice through music – a precocious talent catapulted onto the stage like a British Joan Baez. As the older, reclusive Cass sits down to listen to the 16 songs she has selected to be her 'greatest hits', she takes a journey of introspection and reflection, as the songs she listens to – her songs, whose lyrics we read – trigger memories both sweet and painful, of sunny days, shattering pain, success and d failure. As the records play, Cass' past unravels before the reader, and reveals the tragic reason for her withdrawal from the spotlight.

THE SUNSHINE SISTERS by Jane Green, Macmillan, £14.99 (ebook £7.59)

BEST-SELLING author Jane Green returns to form with this life-affirming novel, set very much in the now, but starting 30 years previously. It's the story of beautiful and charismatic

B-movie actress Ronni's three daughters. Not the best mother in the world, self-absorbed and disinterested, Ronnie wasn't the mother she wanted to be. Nell, Meredith and Lizzy have been left to their own devices, estranged from Ronni – and each other – until they are summoned home.

Ronni has motor neurone disease and is at the end of her life. Can this fractured family forgive their past and heal?

This novel pulls on the heartstrings, but also feels like coming home. A perfect summer read.

PICK OF THE WEEK

THE HANDMAID'S TALE
Channel 4, Sunday, 9pm

THE cast of The Handmaid's Tale made headlines at the Tribeca Film Festival in April when they didn't refer to the story as a feminist piece of work.

"I will only speak for myself because it's a tricky area and I don't want to get other people in trouble but I don't think I quite said the right thing. Clearly," says Elisabeth Moss, 34, who plays the lead in the small screen adaptation of Margaret Atwood's 1985 novel.

"If there was anything I said that led anyone to believe I'm not a feminist or The Handmaid's Tale is not a feminist work then obviously I didn't say the right thing.

"For me, it's just it's not only a feminist work," she clarifies.

"There are many groups that are punished and much maligned in the show. Is it first and foremost feminist? Absolutely, it's called The Handmaid's Tale. It's not called The Abortion Doctor's Tale. It's not called The Gay Man's Tale, but it's also about other things, which is what I was trying to say."

But, as she points out: "I'm not a politician, I'm not trained to talk about this st. I'm a 34-year-old woman who is an actress who has ideas and opinions and I do my best to talk about them.

"It was an interesting learning experience and wake-up call. I didn't know anyone gave a st what I said."

The show, which is half-way through its 10-part run on Channel 4, has received rave reviews on both sides of the Atlantic and a second series has already been commissioned.

It's set in Gilead, a totalitarian society in what was formerly the United States of America.

"Due to environmental changes and disasters, fertility has dropped exponentially in women," explains Elisabeth.

"Only one in five babies are surviving so this new regime has developed a way of procreating in hopes of continuing the race."

All fertile women are captured and sent to the Red Centre where the Handmaids are 'trained' before being placed with an infertile couple.

"The husband has sex with the handmaid in the hopes that they can get her pregnant.

"Then when she does get pregnant, they take the baby and she moves on," explains Elisabeth, who plays June, otherwise known as Offred, a handmaid who's placed with Commander Fred Waterford (Joseph Fiennes) and his wife Serena Joy (Yvonne Strahovski).

"We pick up about three years in and she's not doing too well," she continues.

"Her husband has taken away from her and her daughter's been stolen. She has had a lot of the fight and soul beaten out of her, both physically and emotionally."

The subject matter might be dark,

I found what it means to be a feminist

Elisabeth Moss

Elisabeth plays handmaid June and some of the scenes shocking, but there is hope too and "even humour at times", remarks Elisabeth, who played Peggy Olsen, a secretary-turned-leading copywriter, in the Sixties-set Mad Men.

"Margaret has this amazing, intelligent dark sense of humour that is rampant in the book and capturing that tone and her voice, which becomes Offred's voice, was so important to us," she says.

"We didn't want it to feel like you have dark for dark's sake, nobody wants to watch that. I don't want to watch that, let alone be in it."

Elisabeth was in Australia, filming the first series of BBC Two's Top Of The Lake, in which she plays Detective Robin Griffin, when she first spoke to Bruce Miller, the show's creator and writer.

"We got on the phone and we just kind of gabbed for like an hour and a half, like girlfriends," recalls the actress who "grew up in an artistic background in LA."

"I knew the first two scripts were good before I signed on but it was important that I could have a conversation with the person that I would be working with day in and day out. I wanted to work with someone who I could laugh with and who would listen to me. Those are things that are important to me when signing on to a project."

Her characters in Mad Men, Top Of The Lake and The Handmaid's Tale are all subject to extreme sexism, but while women's rights "have always been close to my heart", Elisabeth stresses it was not something she set out to explore on screen.

"I got the part on Mad Men, it was a job, so it's not like I made a conscious choice, but then through that process and through playing that character, I found my feminism and I found what it means to be a feminist and I got to explore it and it became more and more important to me as I went on," she notes.

"So when I came to something like The Handmaid's Tale, it hit so close to home and felt very personal to me. At the same time I'm also trying to tell human stories and women that are flawed and often that are not heroes and women that can be vulnerable and weak. Just like any of us I want to see myself reflected back from the screen. That is what interests me."

Elisabeth has experienced sexism in her own life.

"My one big thing is women don't make as much as men. I'm 100% positive I've been a victim of that," she reveals.

"The other thing I have experienced is in pitching something that is female-led, [and] I have been told something is 'too female' by executives."

She won't say who or what, only that it "it was recent, in the last

June suffers physically and emotionally in The Handmaid's Tale couple of years."

"It's shocking to hear that," adds Elisabeth, but the comments didn't deter her. We are making it, just not with those people who thought it was 'too female'."

But first is the second series of Top Of The Lake, which airs this summer. If possible, this run, which will also star Nicole Kidman, is set to be even bleaker.

"Four years have passed, the exact amount of time that passed between filming the seasons," Elisabeth has said. "I asked her [Jane Campion, the show's writer] to make it more challenging and make it darker - we needed a real reason to do it again."

How you can help a loved one beat their addiction

As Ant McPartlin checks into rehab to treat drug and alcohol addiction and depression, KATE WHITING asks the experts how to help a loved one battling similar problems

ALONG with his best friend and co-presenter Declan Donnelly, Ant McPartlin always seems the picture of happiness and success, so it's come as a surprise to many that he's seeking help for drug and alcohol addiction.

Ant's problems reportedly began two years ago when he had surgery on his knee. He began taking the prescription painkiller Tramadol to ease the pain which has led to a dependency on them.

He is also believed to be suffering depression and anxiety over struggling to have children with wife Lisa.

As the 41-year-old I'm A Celebrity...Get Me Out Of Here! host checked into rehab, his wife Lisa thanked fans for support.

She took to Twitter to thank everyone for their "love & support" for her husband, adding: "I'm relieved he's receiving the help he needs, we just need him better."

And Dec, 41, also expressed his gratitude to fans, admitting that his TV pal would be incredibly "touched" by their support.

"Thank you for all the kind messages and well wishes for the big fella. He will be touched. Your support is, as ever, much appreciated," he tweeted.

When your partner is struggling to overcome their demons, what can you do to help and support them? Here's some advice from experts...

1 UNDERSTAND THAT THIS IS NOT YOUR FAULT

"YOU may be feeling guilty and confused; it is vital to understand it's not your fault," says Tim Leighton, director of Professional Education and Research at Action on Addiction.

2 ...AND THAT IT'S NOT THEIR FAULT EITHER

"DESPITE consequences that will have made you angry and/or desperately upset, blaming either yourself or your loved one is not productive: it's best to see addiction as a no-fault illness," adds Tim.

"Addiction affects all kinds of people from all walks of life, and people don't become addicted because they are stupid or bad."

Ant, left, pictured with his co-host and best friend Declan Donnelly, appeared to have it all, but pressures mounted behind the scenes

3 GET HELP YOURSELF SO THAT YOU CAN HELP THEM

"FINDING help for yourself is often the best thing that you can do for your family. It's important to make sure you're getting the help, support and advice that you need to cope as best you can," says a spokesperson from national charity Adfam.

"There are support services dedicated to helping the families of drug or alcohol users, and you can meet other family members going through similar experiences."

4 YOU CAN HELP YOUR PARTNER BUT ONLY IF THEY WANT IT

"YOU may also want to try and help your loved one get treatment or support to stop using drugs or alcohol," says Adfam. "Remember that whilst you can try and help someone, stopping can be a difficult process and ultimately, someone will only seek treatment or help if they want it."

"If your loved one wants treatment, there are specialist drug and alcohol services all over the UK, most of which are funded by local authorities or the NHS, and free to access. Some services will need your loved one to be referred by their GP, for others they will be able to simply refer themselves."

5 REMEMBER: YOU'RE NOT ALONE

"MILLIONS of people have struggled with addiction in a loved one, and there are solutions," says Tim. "Meeting and sharing experiences and support with other people in your position is one of the most practically useful and emotionally healing things you can do."

6 LOVE WILL SEE YOU THROUGH

"LOVE can survive addiction," adds Tim.

WHY DO MY ANKLES SWELL UP ON PLANES?

SUMMER means one thing for many of us: holiday time. Undoubtedly brilliant (who doesn't love a few days in the sun?) but they come with their perils - one of which is swollen ankles while flying.

Yes, they're uncomfortable and unsightly, but should they also be a cause for concern?

We asked nutritionist and author Dr Sarah Brewer to give us the lowdown...

WHY DO YOU GET SWOLLEN ANKLES?

"SWOLLEN ankles are usually a sign of poor circulation," says Dr Brewer. "Blood sent to the feet has to return to the heart against gravity. If the heart pumps poorly, or if the vein valves that stop backflow are incompetent (as is the case with varicose veins) blood can pool in the lower legs."

This build-up of fluid leads to puffiness, meaning your ankles swell up.

Other causes of swollen ankles include circulatory changes when pregnant, side effects of medication that cause blood vessels to dilate, fluid retention or changes in the blood fluid composition due to kidney problems or liver disease, blood clots (DVT), swelling of lymph drainage vessels, or swelling due to compression of blood vessels.

Being overweight can also worsen swelling.

ARE THEY CAUSE FOR CONCERN?

IF swollen ankles are more long-term than just the result of warmer weather or flying, it's worth going to your GP to check if it's not anything more serious.

"If persistent, seek medical advice to check for blood pressure, heart, kidney, liver and circulatory problems," Dr Brewer says.

WHY DO ANKLES SWELL ON PLANES?

"CIRCULATION to the legs is reduced due to inactivity, as the pumping action of leg muscles during walking helps blood return to the heart," she explains. "Also, reduced cabin pressure makes it easier for fluid in the circulation to seep out into the tissues."

WHAT CAN YOU DO TO PREVENT THIS?

■ Stand up and move around several times an hour. Perform leg exercises when sitting.

■ Avoid alcohol (which causes blood vessels to dilate).

■ Drink plenty of water.

■ Avoid excess salt which promotes fluid retention.

■ Support socks and stockings are available but should be fitted properly (ask a pharmacist).

■ You should also avoid crossing your legs, as this puts even more pressure on your veins.

For the courgettes:
2 courgettes, halved lengthways
Olive oil

For the tomato fondue:
150ml extra virgin olive oil

3 garlic cloves, peeled and finely sliced

Sprig of rosemary, leaves picked and finely chopped
750g baby plum tomatoes, quartered

For the breadcrumbs:

2tbsp olive oil
80g fresh or dried breadcrumbs
1 garlic clove, crushed
Small bunch parsley, finely chopped

1 sprig each of thyme and rosemary, leaves picked and finely chopped

For the sautéed potatoes:

500g new potatoes, boiled and halved lengthways
50g unsalted butter
Small handful of parsley, roughly chopped

1 shallot, finely diced
2 cloves of garlic, crushed

For the scallops:

50g unsalted butter
16 scallops, cleaned and roe removed ½ lemon

To serve:

8 padrón peppers
Fresh basil and tarragon, leaves picked

METHOD

1. Preheat the oven to 200°C. Score the flesh of the courgettes in a criss-cross pattern and drizzle liberally with olive oil. Season with salt and pepper and place flesh-side up on a baking tray. Roast for 15-20 minutes or until tender and starting to brown.

2. To make the fondue, heat a couple of tablespoons of the oil in a heavy bottomed pan and sweat the garlic and rosemary on a low heat for two minutes without colouring.

3. Add the tomatoes, the rest of the oil and a pinch of salt, turn the heat up and bring to a boil. Simmer for 10 minutes with the lid on.

4. Meanwhile, make the breadcrumbs. Heat the oil in a small frying pan and add all of the breadcrumb ingredients, along with a generous pinch of salt. Cook, stirring, for two to three minutes until crisp. Transfer to a small bowl and set aside.

5. The tomatoes should have released their liquid now and broken down. Taste and adjust the seasoning if necessary and set aside, with the lid on, to keep warm.

6. To sauté the potatoes, melt the butter in a large sauté pan over a medium heat, add the potatoes and fry until golden brown (you may have to do this in batches). Tip into a bowl, straining off any excess butter, mix in the parsley, shallot and garlic and season to taste with salt and pepper.

7. While the potatoes are frying, heat another non-stick frying pan on a medium heat, add 1tbsp of olive oil and cook the padrón peppers until blistered. Remove from the heat and set aside.

8. Using the same pan you just cooked the peppers in, melt the butter for the scallops over a medium-high heat. When the butter is foaming, add the scallops and fry on each side for two to three minutes, or until caramelized and just cooked through. Season with salt and lemon juice.

9. To serve, spoon the tomato fondue in the middle of each plate, followed by a courgette half. Top each with four scallops and sprinkle over the breadcrumbs. Arrange the potatoes and peppers on the side and decorate with the basil and tarragon leaves.

Two decades on, everybody still loves Raymond...

Top chef Raymond Blanc's French restaurant chain Brasserie Blanc is celebrating 21 years in the business. MARION McMULLEN checks out the menu of anniversary specials

Raymond Blanc, whose Brasserie Blanc restaurant chain is marking its 21st anniversary

IT WAS back in 1986 that Frenchman Raymond Blanc opened his first brasserie in the UK. The dream was to make the best of French cuisine affordable to all and now the restaurants can be found all over the country.

They are marking the 21st birthday with a new menu and rotating special "retro" dishes hand-picked by Raymond showcasing the best creations over the years.

He says: "I am very much looking forward to raising a glass or two for the next 21 years."

■ Go to brasserieblanc.com for more information about the anniversary menu.

IF YOU'RE new to this corner of your daily read I thought I'd set down the parameters before you go any further. In just over 500 words I bring you five drinks. It might be a small space but I bring you value. To start, here are a white, a red and a pink.

■ A white: I nipped into Tesco and looked for a simple bottle of white after a very complicated day which had lots of "blimeys" in it. I walked out with Tesco Finest Cotes De Gascogne (£6.50, 11% abv) because I saw the grapes colombard and gros manseng on the front and I know they create fresh but perfumed white wines. It has aromas of lime and grapefruit and those fruits are reflected in the zippy zing flavours.

■ A red: Well this is a cheap

RAISE A GLASS

WITH JANE CLARE

and cheery little thing. Barefoot Wine's Shiraz Cabernet (RRP £6.99, widely available 13.5% abv) provides jammy blackberries which flow over the rim of the glass (aromas that is, not the real thing or that would be silly) and they're there in the mouth too along with a fleck of spice. I cooked cottage pie on a wet summer's night and my wine and my pie were a couple of High Five pals.

■ A pink: Mrs Wigley is flirty and flighty. Mrs Wigley is Wirra Wirra Mrs Wigley Moscato 2016 (RRP £11.75 Ocado, 50cl, 4.5% abv). This Australian lady (well, she's actually a cat in the winery) is so refreshing you could pop her on a stick and be happy with her as an ice lolly. She is made from grapey, floral, sweet moscato and unusually you flip a cap top (like beer) to pour this delicious sweet sparkling nectar. Chill it really well then pour as a sunshine refresher.

■ Also in my glass... This time last year I shared news of a new gin, Spitfire Heritage Gin, in an exclusive "look out for this" kind of way just before it went on sale in Wine Rack. I mention it again because two things have happened.

Number 1 Thing: Spitfire's distillers have now brought out a new vodka - Supermarine Vodka (RRP £45, spitfireheritagedistillers.com) which is named after the company that created the Spitfire. The vodka - which is the base of the gin before the botanicals are added - is getting rave reviews. My exclusive tasting revealed a vodka which is soft, lusciously creamy, rich, balanced and laced with vanilla. I sipped on its own with chunks of ice. You don't need anything else.

Number 2 Thing: Spitfire Heritage Gin (RRP £45 from Wine Rack - and now Harrods) supports the Spitfire Heritage Trust and I was invited to a cross-country Armed Forces Day toast as tribute to our servicemen and women.

The toast began at the 36th floor of the Panoramic restaurant in Liverpool, then rolled down to Marco Pierre White's Steakhouse and Bar in Birmingham and was topped off at the Coca Cola London Eye.

Across the country people raised a glass of Spitfire gin and we were lucky enough to enjoy a gin cocktail (or two). The gin uses botanicals as tribute to wartime pilots; borage (for courage), rosemary (for remembrance), English rose petals (for the flowers of Britain who flew so bravely) and blood orange.

INGREDIENTS

For the dressing: Juice 4 limes; 4tbsp sesame oil; Pinch of brown sugar; Splash of fish sauce; 2 red chillis, deseeded and finely chopped

For the salad: 1 bag mixed salad leaves; 1 cucumber, cut into ribbons using a vegetable peeler; 1 green papaya, cut into matchsticks, seeds removed (or 1 ripe mango, sliced thinly); 1 small red onion, finely diced; 6 spring onions, sliced diagonally; Bunch each of fresh thai basil, coriander and mint, leaves picked; Handful of cashews, toasted in a dry frying pan, roughly chopped; 4 free range chicken breasts; 1tbsp olive oil

METHOD

1. To make the dressing, mix all the ingredients together and stir well to dissolve the sugar. In a large bowl, mix all the salad ingredients except the nuts. Toss with the dressing and set aside.
2. Using a meat tenderiser, saucepan or a rolling pin, bash each chicken breast between two pieces of cling film until about 1.5cm thick all over. Season with salt.

SALAD DAYS

CHICKEN AND GREEN
PAPAYA SALAD
(SERVES 4)

3. Heat the oil in a large frying pan over a medium to high heat. Place the chicken breasts in the pan and fry for about four minutes on each side or until cooked through.
4. Put one piece of chicken on each plate and carefully build the salad on top.
5. Sprinkle over the chopped cashews and decorate with extra coriander leaves.

INGREDIENTS

For the rhubarb compote: 400g rhubarb, cut into 3cm lengths

For the pastry: 200g unsalted butter, softened 100g icing sugar 2 egg yolks 250g plain flour Pinch of salt

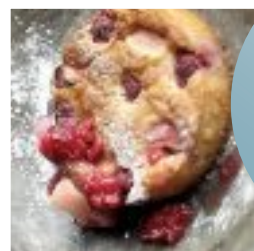

For the tart filling: 100g unsalted butter, at room temperature 100g icing sugar 2 eggs, lightly beaten 100g ground almonds 1tsp rum (optional)
For the crème Chantilly: 284ml carton double cream 1tbsp caster sugar Seeds from 1 vanilla pod

METHOD

1. To make the compote, mix the rhubarb with the sugar and leave to marinade in a single layer in an ovenproof dish while you make the pastry.
2. Place the softened butter and sugar in the bowl of a food processor and pulse until fully combined. Add the egg yolks and pulse again until fully incorporated. Add the flour and salt and pulse quickly until all the flour has been incorporated into the butter, sugar and yolk mixture and it has a uniform colour and texture. Remove from the food processor and bring the pastry together with your hands. Cover with cling film and chill for at least 30 mins before using.

3. Roll out the pastry on a surface lightly dusted with flour so that it is about 5mm thick and arrange the tart tins on top. Cut out the pastry a little larger than the tins (you may need to re-roll the trimmings to make the sixth tart case) then press the pastry into the tins and up the sides, trimming the top a little above the edge. Prick the bases with a fork and chill until cold and firm.
4. Meanwhile, preheat the oven to 140°C. Cover the dish of rhubarb with foil and bake for 14 minutes. To cook the pastry, turn the oven up to 190°C. Line the tart cases with baking paper and fill with baking beans, pasta or rice. Bake for 10 minutes, or

FINE TART

RHUBARB AND RASPBERRY
FRANGIPANE TART
(SERVES 6)

until there are no under-cooked grey patches, and remove the paper and beans. Return the empty tart shells to the oven for five to six minutes until the pastry is dry and sandy to the touch but not coloured.
5. Leave the tart cases to cool for a minute, then release them from the tins while they are still warm (or they will stick as they cool down), being very gentle as they are delicate. Transfer to a wire rack and leave to cool completely.
6. Next, make the filling. Beat the butter and sugar together until light and fluffy and then gradually beat in the eggs. Stir in ground almonds and rum (if using) until smooth.

7. Turn the oven down to 175°C. Divide the filling mixture between the tart cases and place a bit of rhubarb compote in the middle of each tart. Arrange raspberries around it. Return the tarts to the oven for another 15-20 minutes or until golden. While the tarts are cooking, make the Chantilly cream by whipping all the ingredients together to soft peaks.
8. To serve, place a tart in the middle of each plate and spoon the remaining rhubarb compote around it. Dust with icing sugar and place a spoonful of Chantilly cream on top of each tart.

GETAWAY

THE FRIENDLY ISLES

NIGEL HEATH HEADS DOWN TO CORNWALL, THEN KEEPS GOING SOUTH TO THE SCILLY ISLES

FOR a few moments I caught a magnificent gannet in the black-rimmed circle of my binoculars and followed it as it climbed higher into a clear blue sky over St Martin's.

Its long snow-white wings, with their coal black tips, flashed as the bird suddenly folded them and plunged headlong into the sea, some unsuspecting fish ready for dinner.

I watched as the bird hit the water, beak-first, at 60mph. Then, with that rapturous spell broken, I passed the 'bins' to my wife Jenny as we sat amid a riot of yellow vetch and pink sea thrift on the edge of a dazzling white sandy bay with no one else in sight.

It was the first afternoon of our May week's holiday amid the beautiful Isles of Scilly, just 37 miles off Land's End. Many think about going to St Mary's, St Martin's, Tresco, Bryher and St Agnes but relatively few actually ever have.

Minutes earlier, I'd been snoozing in relaxed holiday mode when a wet-suited couple passing by on their way for a snorkel heard my snoring.

They delighted in telling me so when we met them trudging back from the beach. That's one of the wonderful aspects of Scilly. Most everyone shares that friendly camaraderie of just being there.

What a busy day it had been, firstly on our two-and-a-half hour passage from Penzance on the sturdy MS Scillonian, which recently celebrated her 40th anniversary shuttling the equivalent of three times to the moon and back.

We'd transferred to one of the little fleet of hardy boats which link the islands year round for our crossing to St Martin's and the secluded Karma Hotel, built like an unobtrusive row of granite cottages above a white sandy beach.

When I asked general manager Bjoern Duerr if the fish on the menu was caught locally, he pointed to a boat out in the bay. And, for those craving food for the soul, the hotel has a record player and a wonderful collection of old vinyls.

Like the other islands, St Martin's also offers self-catering as well as a

The Star Castle Hotel

Wild flowers at Hell Bay on Bryher

B&B and sheltered camping, although take note that sleeping under canvas is not an option on Tresco.

Chatting to people on our rambles along quiet sandy paths awash with wild flowers gave us a glimpse into their lives.

Emily Crees, a former gardener from Tonbridge Wells, was sitting outside her cottage, potting up plants in the evening sunshine. She and her husband Dominic came to St Martin's on holiday and fell so much in love with the island that when its pub, The Severn Stones, came up for sale they bought it.

Shoemaker Richard Morton and his wife Jenny landed from Devon in 1975, raising and home-schooling seven children, the experience of which prompted Jenny to launch a home education service.

Next morning we boarded a powerful 12-man inflatable rib boat from the jetty outside the hotel for a Sea Safari around the islands, a trip marked by sun, spray, seals, puffins and seabirds.

Another highlight followed on nearby Tresco, where we were guided around the exotic Abbey Gardens by student gardener Ollie Johnson from Cookham, who was fired with a burning ambition to become head gardener himself one day.

Now, it was time to return to St Mary's for our final three nights at the Star Castle Hotel, built in 1593 and perched above Hugh Town on The Garrison Hill. Owned and run by Robert Francis and his son James and family, it has its own vineyard planted by Robert.

The following morning we joined the tide of other lucky visitors making their way down to the quay to board one of the launches bound for the off-islands.

Ours was to be a real desert island experience as, on reaching Bryher, the tide was so low that everyone was ferried ashore from the launch by dinghy and then had to paddle barefoot through the crystal-clear waters.

Bryher, like neighbouring Tresco, St Martin's and St Agnes can be strolled around in a few hours and still has that wonderful feel of an idyllic place that time somehow managed to forget.

But I was suddenly shaken out of my romanticism when we came across a GPO van on the quay. It seemed so out of place – the island has fewer than two miles of road and only 80 inhabitants – that I sought out part-time postie Brendan Boulton.

He and his wife Kath, who also run The Vine Cafe, arrived on Bryher with their four children 19 years ago. Surely there can't be much mail to deliver, I suggested? Apparently Internet shopping has made quite a difference.

We spent our final day strolling around St Mary's, visiting its secluded bays, peaceful lake side nature reserve and wild community garden set in an old quarry and coming across small flower-filled tea gardens and tiny art galleries.

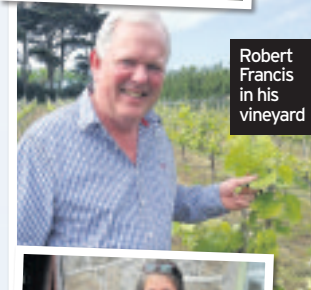

When we boarded the MS Scillonian next morning, we knew that our memories of these peaceful isles would loom large long after they had finally sunk below the horizon.

Who murdered Evelyn Foster?

In 1931, off a remote Northumberland road, flames rose up into the night. Beyond anyone's help, Evelyn Foster lay near her burning car – herself engulfed in flames. With her last breath she described her assailant: a mysterious man with a bowler hat.

Nearly 90 years after her murder the case remained unsolved. With unprecedented access to the police files has crime writer, Diane Janes, finally tracked the killer down?

Downsizers' Delight

Kings Group estate agents is selling a two bedroom, semi-detached property in Watersmeet, Harlow.

A Tardis-like bungalow that offers a surprisingly spacious and luxurious interior is on the market in Harlow.

Kings Group estate agents is selling a two bedroom, semi-detached property in Watersmeet, Harlow, which offers a buyer the benefit of being chain free.

The build is on a quiet private road in a desirable end of town. There is also an open plan living space and sufficient parking space for one vehicle.

The open plan kitchen design, with double glazed windows and French doors, provides an airy and fresh feel to the house. It is fitted to include a washing machine and has a gas cooker.

The first bedroom is conveniently linked to the modern styled wet room. The second bedroom is a similar size, while the garden includes a paved area and side access and two sheds.

Watersmeet has the benefit of being off the beaten track and is near to Roydon and Rye House railway stations as well as both Harlow stations.

It is a three mile drive – or walk if you fancy a stroll – to Harlow town centre.

Kings has priced the bungalow at £319,995 and, being chain free, it could be yours very soon.

SCHOOL FOR THOUGHT

The Old School House boasts a prominent position on the village green in the picturesque village of Finchingfield

If school days are the best days of your life, this property promises to be a very happy home. On the market for £900,000, The Old School House, off The Green in Finchingfield is a beautifully arranged three to four-bedroom detached home.

The building was converted by architect Robert Wood as his own residence during the 1990s.

As you would expect from a period conversion, it has retained many original features, including high ceilings, fireplace and exposed beams and traces of the names of former pupils can be seen in places.

The solid wood front door opens into a spacious studio, study area or bedroom and inner hallway. Doors lead to the main reception room and dining area.

Further doors lead to the kitchen/breakfast room featuring stone flooring and a fitted kitchen including wooden work surfaces, integral appliances and an Aga.

A landing area upstairs leads to a master bedroom with en-suite shower room and dressing area, two further dual aspect bedrooms offer views over the village green and a family bathroom completes the first floor. To the rear of the property is a private country garden with lawn, mature trees, hedgerows, shrubs and a patio.

There is also a small rose garden and gravel driveway to the front providing plenty of space for vehicles.

The Old School House is located short walk from the village pub and tea rooms.

For more information, contact Fine and Country, 21 North Street, Bishop's Stortford, or phone (01279) 757500.

The green house effect

Houseplants are starting to creep back into fashion and GABRIELLE FAGAN gets expert advice on nailing the look Houseplants are back in vogue. Once a popular feature in Sixties and Seventies homes, they fell out of favour in the minimalist Nineties, but now going green indoors is all the rage again.

"We've observed the creeping return of greenery in the way some of the chicest folk around decorate their homes today," says Kara O'Reilly, co-author with Ian Drummond of At Home With Plants.

"Cool interiors are upping the variety of plant pots in their ranges, and there's a revival of everything from terrariums to hanging planters as decorative elements."

"One of the most amazing things about houseplants is that you enjoy them all year round, and there's nothing more satisfying to the soul than nurturing a living thing," adds Kara.

"With a little know-how, even the least green fingered among us can grow an indoor plant. But be warned – once you start, the look will grow on you!"

LIVING ROOM

"Houseplants can have enormous impact in a living room because there are so many areas to display them," says Kara.

"Follow the fashion for hanging planters – in macrame, metal or marble – and attach them to the ceiling to create a 'green screen'. Or invest in a set of open shelves, fill with potted plants to make a room divider. Quirky containers for foliage – such as vintage hampers – will inject personality into a setting"

How to display: Surfaces from mantels to shelves, windowsills

At Home With Plants, by Ian Drummond & Kara O'Reilly, with photos by Nick Pope, is published by Mitchell Beazley, priced £20. Available now and side tables are perfect homes for plants. If you have the space, go to town with a group of different sized, floor-standing architectural palms to create a focal point.

What to pick: Palms, weeping figs or finger trees are all conversation pieces. Choose plants in foliage colours to complement your ornaments or colour scheme, such as trailing plants, English ivy, chain cactus; or flowering plants such as flamingo flower, pink quill or vanda orchids.

KITCHEN

"The kitchen's the heart of the home, so why not show yours a little love with some creative planting?" says Kara.

"Herbs are an obvious choice, as they're attractive, an invaluable cooking ingredient and their fragrance masks odours."

How to display: Try placing a large container of mixed herbs on a table, or plant individual varieties of herbs in matching pots and line them up along a

A collection of plants of varying heights make a striking statement shelf, a windowsill, or a work surface.

What to pick: Chives, coriander, mint, basil. They prefer a light, bright position such as a sunny windowsill and regular water and occasional misting. Ideally, buy plants from a garden centre as they'll last longer. Asplenium ferns, echeveria succulents and moth orchids also thrive in kitchens with lots of light.

BATHROOM

"Most bathrooms tend to fall into one of two camps: light and humid, or dark and humid. While light levels are obviously a key consideration when choosing plants for any space, with a bathroom you need to select humidity-loving plants above all," advises Kara.

How to display: Arrange plants so they're within your sight line when taking a soak in the tub or a shower. In a small space, choose miniature varieties and dot them amongst your lotions and potions.

What to pick: Cacti and most succulents are an absolute no-no. Orchids, ferns, aloes and palms all like humidity and can also tolerate fluctuations in temperature. Trailing plants work well, including spider plants; heart-leaf philodendron and chestnut vine. Foliage plants are a better choice for a dark bathroom as flowering plants generally need higher levels of light.

BEDROOM

"Plants don't only look good in bedrooms – but they can also help us feel calm and act as natural air conditioners, gently raising the humidity levels and improving air quality," says Kara.

How to display: A plant on a bedside table will upgrade its look and is a welcoming touch for a guest. Consider an indoor tree by a bed, or hanging planters to bring interest to a dull corner.

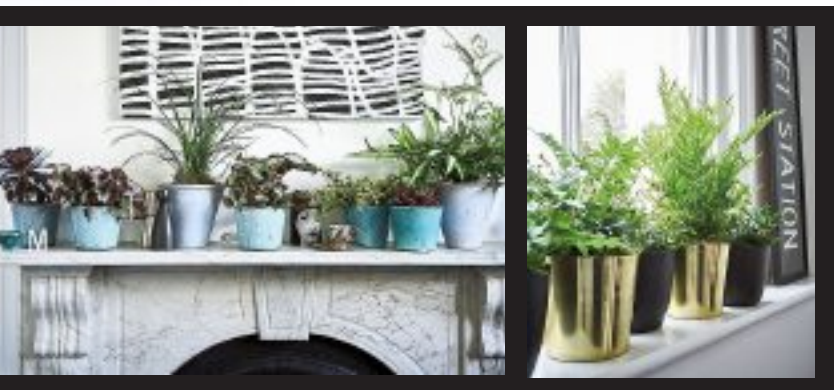

What to pick: Plants that cope with slightly lower temperatures and potentially lower light levels. Seek out varieties which are proven toxic filters, such as heartleaf philodendron and peace lily.

Improve air quality by choosing plants that release oxygen at night, such as orchids, Barbados aloe and mother-in-law's tongue; while lavender (known as a sleep inducer) could scent the air.

Vintage hampers are great plant holders

Sheer glass

Plants can make a terrific centrepiece to any room. For instance, this pretty terrarium is filled with (from left) radiator plant, money tree, echeveria and finished with reindeer moss.

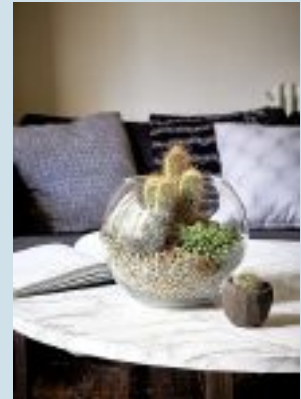

Vine connoisseur

Displaying a trailing silver vine, an assortment of ferns, and a chain cactus in the dead space on top of a wardrobe creates a lovely indoor border.

Water well

Prickly subject

An open terrarium allows for attractive plant overspill, such as trailing plants draped over the edge or plants growing out of the top, like this cactus.

PRIDE & PREJUDICE HOME GOES ON MARKET

This year celebrations have been taking place all over the UK to mark the 200th anniversary of author Jane Austen's death, including an exhibition at the British Library and both a £10 note and £2 coin bearing her image.

But for millions of people their most memorable experience of Jane Austen is the BBC's 1995 TV adaption of her book, Pride & Prejudice. Starring Colin Firth, Jennifer Ehle, Alison Steadman and Julia Sawalha, the six-part series was a huge hit and up to 11 million tuned in each week.

The story follows the fortunes of the Bennet family who live at Longbourn estate. In the BBC adaptation Longbourn was in reality Grade II listed Luckington Court, a 16th remodelling of a 11th century edifice, built in honeyed Cotswold stone.

The property is what most Brits imagine a country house to be including elegant rooms, high ceilings, huge sash windows, an impressive exterior and sweeping gravel drive, all of which attracted BBC location scouts.

The property is currently for sale the first time in 70 years, priced at £9.5 million.

Included in the price is the eight-bedroom, seven-bath-room main house, integral apartment, annexe, five further dwellings, dovecot, farm buildings, 157 acres of grassland and woods and nearly 800m of river frontage.

■ Further information is available from agent Woolley & Wallis, 01672 515252.

Wooden interiors create a rustic feel

Academy Award-winning actor Jeff Bridges has been a household name since he was just 10 years old when he appeared in US TV series Sea Hunt during the late 1950s with his famous father, Lloyd Bridges and brother Beau. He went on to star in dozens of hit movies, including Thunderbolt and Lightfoot during the 1970s, The Fabulous Baker Boys in the 1980s, The Big Lebowski during the 1990s, Iron Man in 2008 and True Grit in 2010.

Jeff has been married to wife Susan since 1977 and the pair have raised three daughters. For much of that time the family lived in a 20-acre Tuscan-style estate in Montecito, California, west of Los Angeles. All three daughters have now left home and the couple recently decided they didn't need their 9,593-square-foot home, despite its spectacular ocean views.

They bought the property in 1994 from singer Kenny Loggins for $7 million but put it on the market two years ago for $25 million. It has only now found a buyer, at $15.93 million. The main house has five bedrooms, six bathrooms, large formal rooms for entertaining and a grand hall.

There's also a theatre, four-car garage and a wine cellar while the master bedroom suite has its own private island.

The Tuscan style villa sits amid pretty countryside

If you've been watching the latest Sky Atlantic series Riviera then you'll probably have been ogling at the extraordinary villa that Georgina lives in with her shady billionaire husband.

The character, played by Julia Stiles, spends much of her time wandering around the property which, it turns out after her husband's death, was bought with dirty money. The 10-part Riviera series used Chateau Diter for the house, a recently-built mansion that's the home to a French businessman. As well as for filming, he rents it out for parties and luxury weddings.

But it's not the only property like it within this exclusive enclave of the Riviera, in the hills above Cannes.

LIVE IN STILES OF THE RIVIERA STARS

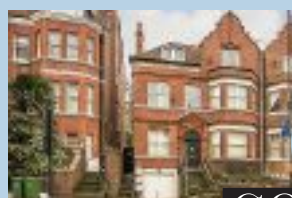

It's near the small town of Grasse and more than a third of all properties here sell to British buyers who, says agent Tim Swannie of Home Hunts, are looking for more traditional homes.

A good example of such a home is this 18th century stone bastide with six bedrooms overlooking the coast, and around the corner from Chateau Diter. It's for sale at $3.9 million and comes with a terraced garden and a swimming pool below the property.

Should you have the deep pockets to buy the property, then you'll be in starchy company. Tim says he's sold properties locally to both celebrities and the "occasional minor royal" so popping down to the shops for milk should be interesting.

COOKING GURU'S TASTEFUL HOME

Celebrity Indian home cooking guru Vicky Bhogal was one of several Asian cooks who enjoyed a rapid rise to fame during the early noughties.

Her first book, published when she was just 24, Cooking Like Mimmyji, garnered rave reviews, including from Nigella Lawson who said she was "mad about the book".

Vicky went on to publish two more books, and launched her own range of chilled foods in partnership with Tesco in 2004.

She bought her first home with the proceeds from her Tesco deal, refurbishing it to a luxury level.

She's about to move to Burgundy to set up a cookery school and her apartment in Hampstead is now for sale and includes a kitchen/diner where she completed much of the recipe research and cooking for her books, she says.

Her flat is a two-bedroom first-floor apartment with access to a communal garden, for sale at £850,000.

COTTAGE'S DH LAWRENCE LINK

Quarry Cottage sounds like one of the many family homes to be bought in and around Mansfield in Nottinghamshire. It's got five bedrooms, three reception rooms, a games room, gym, jacuzzi and, says agent Bairstow Eves, "oozes character and charm".

What many potential buyers may not realise is that it has links to the life of world-famous writer DH Lawrence.

Lawrence's book Lady Chatterley's Lover outraged society during the 1930s and later in 1960 when the government tried to prosecute its publisher Penguin for obscenity.

Penguin won, and the book went on to sell three million copies. Lawrence

Quarry Cottage features in two of DH Lawrence's famed works also wrote Sons and Lovers, and was an accomplished poet too.

Quarry Cottage is where his heavy-drinking father was born. But the property also features in at least two of the writer's stories including Odour of Chrysanthemums and Daughters of the Vicar, in which it is mentioned using its real name.

The cottage is in the mining village of Brinsley, where many of the Lawrence family lived, and was originally one of three cottages before one was demolished and the remaining two used to create one dwelling.

The current owner bought the 1821-built property 11 years ago in a "near derelict state" and then added two extensions and the redeveloped the garden. It also has three floors and is set within a plot of three-quarters of an acre.

YOUR GARDEN

With Diarmuid Gavin

Late June is a wonderful time of the gardening year – my home plot is full of flowers and lush green growth. However, among the spectacular displays, there's still work to be done.

Inspecting my borders the other evening I came across foliage which was twisted, blistered and deformed. I turned over a couple of affected leaves and found the culprits – an extended family of aphids had moved in.

Aphids come in a number of shades. There is the classic greenfly, there are creamy-yellow coloured aphids, pink ones (which are quite pretty to look at), black ones, even woolly ones, to name but a few.

They all reproduce prolifically and if you neglect to notice the beginnings of a colony they may have produced a number of generations before you spot the damage. Plants commonly affected by them generally have a lot of soft green growth.

At this time of the year aphids will be emerging and multiplying in huge numbers on lime trees. Aphids exude a sugary, sap-like excretion which will make the ground sticky and discoloured underneath. If there are plants underneath they tend to get a sooty mould growing on the honeydew.

But many other plants can also be affected. Recently I noticed a Choisya ternata had blackening leaves which appeared to be dying.

*Choisya*s are normally robust shrubs but this was covered in a sooty mould and the honeydew was coming from aphids on an overhanging lime tree.

Aphids not only distort and stunt young growth and cause secondary problems such as sooty mould – they can also be a disease carrier as they move from one plant to another. Because they are sap-sucking insects they can carry viruses or bacteria to the next plant.

It is very tempting to pop into a garden centre or hardware shop, buy a chemical insecticide and spray them into oblivion. But insecticides should really be avoided as they will often kill other beneficial insects, including those which eat aphids.

If you wish to spray aphids, just use a liquid made up of soft soap and warm water. It will clog their spiracles (through which they breathe) and kill them.

You will need to wash the soapy residue off the plants afterwards.

An alternative is to buy a biological control, such as ladybirds or lacewings, and release them into your garden.

Their larvae are voracious eaters of Something bugging you?

The aphids are coming... so get ready to fight for your plants

Encourage natural predators such as ants, left, and ladybirds

Poached egg plant (Limnanthes) and marigolds can help combat the pests

Blackfly and woolly aphids, can destroy the plants in your garden aphids. This doesn't mean you should watch and wait while your plants are destroyed either. Get a hose out and spray the aphids off the plant. Many of them won't survive the blasting and those that do will hopefully be eaten.

If there aren't so many, you can pick or rub them off the leaves with your fingers.

I had a blackcurrant bush years ago which was badly affected. I picked the worst leaves off the plant and destroyed them and sprayed the remaining leaves with the hose whenever I was out watering. The leaves improved hugely.

With any pest or disease problem, vigilance is very important – especially with aphids.

You can also place sacrificial plants in the garden near your precious ones to lure aphids away. For example, grow Calendula officinalis (pot marigolds) under apple trees and plums as they will draw away any blackfly.

Pot marigolds serve a dual purpose as they attract hoverflies, whose larvae also feed on aphids. French marigolds (Tagetes patula) and the poached egg plant (Limnanthes douglasii) also attract hoverflies and make great companion plants for your endangered specimens.

Another good decoy is Tropaeolum majus, commonly called nasturtiums.

The joy of hitting the natural balance is that although you may see a couple of blackfly or greenfly colonies on your nasturtiums, you can also watch hoverfly larvae devour the greenfly on your roses, or delight in your kids counting the spots on the ladybirds and see the light catching the delicate green wings of the lacewings.

Birds eat aphids too, so extend a big welcome to our feathered friends!

Watering is essential throughout the summer

Don't let the garden dry out while you enjoy the sunshine

■ WATER, WATER, WATER!

That's your main job over the summer as we, and the plants, hopefully sizzle in glorious sunshine and keep fruit bushes well-watered in dry spells as well giving the fruit a chance swell.

■ PLUMS, pears and apples can be thinned out this month.

JOBS FOR THE WEEK

This happens naturally as well – it's called June drop – but if you want bigger fruit, remove some of the smaller fruitlets.

■ CHECK brassicas (cabbages, broccoli, turnips, brussels sprouts) for butterflies laying their eggs – often you will find them on the underside of leaves.

Remove them, as, when hatched caterpillars will feed voraciously and could completely exfoliate your plant.

■ MOVE citrus fruit outdoors for the summer. Continue successional sowing of salads and sow outdoors cucumber, sweetcorn, squash, French, runner and broad beans.

■ PRUNE spring-flowering deciduous shrubs, such as kerria, philadelphus, forsythia, ribes and weigela as soon as they are finished flowering.

Nasturtiums also work a treat and are colourful and cheery to look at

ASK DIARMUID

Q I HAVE a problem with moss growing on the branches of my gooseberry bushes. I have cut branches from the centre, but the moss is still growing. Do you know what I can do to cure the problem?

Ray Allford

A Hi Ray. The pruning you did was the best course of action, allowing light and air circulation in. Moss needs moisture to grow, so I'm wondering, is the soil a bit damp?

Sometimes lichen grows on the bark and that is harmless, but I would remove any moss by hand. You could use a product such as MossOff, which is completely organic and suffocates the moss with a layer of starch and won't harm anything else.

You might consider moving the plant to a place where drainage is less of a problem.

PLANT OF THE WEEK

ASTILBE

WHICH beauty likes to hang around in the shadows but makes sure she get lots of attention in the summer when she dons a bright feathery boa?

Astilbe - and what a great plant this is for semi-shade. It has attractive, finely-cut or serrated foliage and then these wonderful plumes of flowers in red, pink, purple or white in summertime. It's happy in sunshine as long as the soil doesn't dry out. Its key requirement is damp, poorly-drained soil - a boggy or poolside situation is ideal.

TOP FIVE REASONS TO BUY A NEW DAVID WILSON HOME THIS SUMMER

Five Star Housebuilder David Wilson Homes is encouraging home buyers to consider the advantages of owning a new-build home this summer. Most of these reasons come from home buyers' surveys which highlight the fact that new homes generally offer a range of benefits that the second-hand market cannot hope to match.

Jason Colmer, Sales Director at David Wilson Homes Eastern Counties, said: "There are many advantages to buying a new home that we would like home buyers to consider.

"Buying a brand new home means you can move in straight away without any DIY needing to be done and you're guaranteed a quality home which is energy-efficient and has lower maintenance costs.

"We offer a range of low-deposit schemes, discounts and a bespoke Part Exchange service which very often help people move house or get on the property ladder where otherwise they might not have been able to."

David Wilson Homes' top five reasons to buy new are:

- 1 Save on your energy bills – new homes are built to the latest environmental standards and could be up to 55% more energy-efficient than an upgraded Victorian home. This means you're getting a home that is greener, warmer and more efficient to run.
- 2 Put your own stamp on your home – the housebuilder's Expressions range allows purchasers to add the final finishing touches to make their home individual. Buyers securing a home off-plan or at an early stage in the build process are able to specify a range of things, from upgrading a kitchen or bedroom to choosing carpets and furnishings.
- 3 Cutting-edge designs – David Wilson Homes designs each of its properties with quality, the customer and modern living in mind. The homes prioritise space, and come with free-flowing living and dining areas that encourage natural light into the spacious rooms. The expertly crafted homes provide generously sized bedrooms that give each member of the family their own space to enjoy, whilst also having large social areas where quality time can be spent together.
- 4 Bespoke incentive packages – a wide range of schemes is available when you choose to move into a brand new home, ensuring it's as easy and stress-free a move as possible. These include the Government-backed Help to Buy scheme which allows purchasers to secure a new home with just a 5% deposit and David Wilson Homes' bespoke Movemaker and Part Exchange schemes.
- 5 Five Star Housebuilder – David Wilson Homes has been awarded the maximum five star official rating from the Home Builders Federation (HBF) for the eighth time in a row^ following the results of the annual Home Builders Federation customer satisfaction survey.

COUPLE FIND THEIR COMMUTER HAVEN AT KINGSWOOD PLACE

A couple from Essex have purchased their first home together at David Wilson Homes' development in Elsenham, near Bishops Stortford. Rebecca Cleverly (23) and Jamie Kruppa (22) have recently purchased a two bedroom home at Kingswood Place. Rebecca said, "Location was the key for us. We absolutely love the village of Elsenham as Jamie is originally from here and when we looked at Kingswood Place we knew the development was perfect. The commuter links are brilliant, I work in London and the train to Liverpool Street is extremely handy. It's wonderful living in a quiet village but still having easy access to Essex and London by train and car."

The couple are now living happily in their Belmont style home, and planning their wedding for 2018. Rebecca said: "We absolutely love the French doors leading out onto the garden, it gives us a beautiful view of the sunrise in the morning". Jamie added, "The kitchen is also a great feature of the house, we're really happy we went for an upgrade as it looks brilliant." The couple used the Government-backed Help to Buy* scheme to buy their home. The scheme allows home buyers to purchase a home with just 5% deposit and 75% mortgage, with the remaining 20% made up of an equity loan from the Government. Jason Colmer, Sales Director at David Wilson Homes Eastern Counties, said, "It's fantastic to hear that Help to Buy enabled Rebecca and Jamie to buy their first home together. Help to Buy is incredibly important in helping people get onto the property ladder and existing homeowners looking to move up the ladder."

When asked about their experience with David Wilson Homes, Rebecca said, "The experience from seeing the house online at first and then watching it being built to then moving in and living in our new home has been amazing. We're incredibly proud of our new-build home. The Sales Adviser, Amy, has been absolutely brilliant and helpful at every stage. Even from our first enquiry with her we knew David Wilson Homes was professional but friendly."

KIA REVEALS STONIC

Korean car maker's first compact SUV unveiled and arrives UK in October

By David Ward

KIA may be coming a bit late to the fast-growing compact SUV sector but once the front-wheel-drive Stonic arrives in the UK in October it is expected to become one of the Korean car maker's top selling models.

Unveiled this week this five-door, five-seater compact SUV, which is based on Kia's current Rio platform, is likely to start at a competitive price of between £14,500 and £15,000, smack bang up against the established rival pair of the Nissan Juke and Renault Captur.

The Stonic will be powered with a choice of three current Kia petrol engines - the highly impressive 1.0-litre 118bhp three-cylinder plus the 1.25-litre and 1.4-litre - whilst a 1.6-litre diesel engine will be added later.

Kia's UK boss Paul Philpott is adamant that the Stonic will prove to be "both one of our biggest selling cars and also our biggest new car to attract conquest sales".

He went on: "The B segment is the fastest growing in the business and we are so pleased to be able to now compete in it for the first time and with a model that's really different in our view from all the opposition.

"For a start there will be a choice of 20 two-tone body colour combination plus five unique roof colours plus a host of other options and variations offering each customer to really customise their particular car without having to break the bank to be able to afford them.

"Apart from many options available the spec line-up will be in the usual Kia format, starting with the entry-level 1 through 3 and then GT-Line models."

He added: "We believe the Stonic will appeal particularly to the sub 35 year-old buyer who want a sensible, compact SUV type of car, well kitted out that includes many standard safety features and has bags of interior space, certainly head and leg room in the rear seats - and has a bit of style about it."

The Stonic has been basically designed by Kia's Frankfurt styling studios under the guidance of the company's design chief Peter Schreyer who admitted from the start it was aimed specifically as a compact SUV for driving on European roads and had taken him and his team only three years to be developed from scratch.

"We were determined not to just create another small SUV but one with dynamic proportions that was also markedly different from what else was in the market place," Schreyer explained.

"Specifically we didn't want a high bodied style of SUV which was why it was so important to get those dynamic proportions right and at the same time having the distinctive Kia front end with the tiger-style nose grills and strong, sweeping headlights.

"It also had to be functional and practical at the same time create a present on the road that would make it stand out from the others," he continued.

"It has an important identity of its own and that's another aspect which I believe will attract drivers of all age to the car."

The Stonic cars unveiled to VIP audience in Amsterdam all sat on 17-inch wheels and Schreyer admitted if he could do the design all again.

"I would like to have slightly bigger wheels to give it an even little bit more presence or statue but sometimes as a designer you have to compromise with what the engineers also want," he said.

"But I am happy with what we have created and I think it will appeal to a wider motoring audience who want something different to both look at and drive in this sector."

The Stonic does have a decent enough presence though with some classic rugged black cladding around the bottom of the car and round the wheel arches plus metal styled skid plates at both the front and rear.

As Schreyer also declared the interior styling, trim and finishing was again a crucial area in which his team spent a great deal of time, discussion and effort and on first viewing it clearly has worked with stylish yet good lumbar supporting seats, a well laid out dashboard with a seven-inch infotainment system that includes Apple

CarPlay and Android Auto for all the latest smartphone use.

There are also heated front seats and an impressive list of standard equipment that includes cruise control, keyless entry and much more.

The amount of interior space is also impressive and it will sit five adults in comfort with the rear seats in particular offering good head, shoulder and leg room while the 352-litre boot has two step floors plus room enough for a space saver tyre underneath them both.

Standard safety features will also include Electronic Stability Control and another feature described as Vehicle Stability Management.

The engineers developing the Stonic have driven it thousands of miles of all kinds of European roads, including in the UK, all aimed at making the ideal fit for drivers here and which involved specially tunes suspension and steering.

And as Paul Philpott added: "It's a compact SUV definitely designed in every aspect for our kinds of roads and with many good in-built features that makes it different from the rest of the car in my view and a new model that's going to take Kia on to another level."

YOUR

ARIES MARCH 21 - APRIL 20

I can see that there continues to be an air of tiredness. This is due to the many stresses which both your work and your relationships have brought into your life of late. Throughout this week you are given the chance to find new ways to cope and to relax. Don't be a fool, but make sure you take full advantage. Ring now to hear why it's worth turning up early for events.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 300 65p PER MINUTE

TAURUS APRIL 21 - MAY 21

Ideas you have at this time are the basis for a really successful future. Mars is on your side to make quick and successful changes. You would be wise to remember the age old saying that if you think you can, you will and if you think you can't, you won't. Fellow Taurans help you to make a better atmosphere in the home. Ring now so we can talk about these mixed emotions in love.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 301 65p PER MINUTE

GEMINI MAY 22 - JUNE 21

Please make sure that any news or information that comes your way is not shared with others just yet. Especially if it's about other's lives and not your own. Travel is well starred and can help you to make your career a better place to be. Work and play mix well and you start to see that you can find balance. You just had to make time for you. Ring now so I can help you to get your priorities in order.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 302 65p PER MINUTE

CANCER JUNE 22 - JULY 22

If you believe you can succeed this week, then you will. Cancer. Try to act as if you are wearing an invisible crown. I know you thought you weren't good enough for the dreams you were pursuing but, truth be told, you are more than ready for what lies ahead. Someone from your past wants to come back into your life. Hear them out first. Ring now for an important message from Mercury.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 303 65p PER MINUTE

LEO JULY 23 - AUGUST 23

Are you following your dreams or the advice and plans of others? Only you can answer this question honestly my friend. This weekend is a great time for first dates and also for reconciliations. A slow pace with your work on Monday and Tuesday can help you regain the respect of those you fell out with. Ring now so we can talk about making dreams a reality.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 304 65p PER MINUTE

VIRGO AUGUST 24 - SEPTEMBER 22

The word commitment may seem as if it holds a different meaning this week. Why don't you give yourself a little more time to look at the bigger picture. It would be worth your while stepping back and letting others do some of the work for a change. The written word is important and can help you to get ahead of the competition. Ring now so we can talk about long term goals and changes.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 305 65p PER MINUTE

LIBRA SEPTEMBER 23 - OCTOBER 23

Try not to emotionally blackmail those you love into what you want. Try to reach a happy middle ground. What you don't realise yet, but you will by the end of the week, is that a compromise is the answer to ensuring both sides are happy. News of a marriage or engagement gives you much food for thought. Ring now so we can talk new dreams and aspirations.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 306 65p PER MINUTE

SCORPIO OCTOBER 24 - NOVEMBER 21

You think your future is not in your hands, but you are wrong. You hold the power to make any dream into a reality. You just have to start believing in yourself a little more. Venus helps you to better understand what you want from your future, but this could see many of your sign making major life changes. Ring now so I can show you what new dreams are waiting.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 307 65p PER MINUTE

SAGITTARIUS NOVEMBER 22 - DECEMBER 20

Don't be afraid to ask questions this week. It will be all too easy for you to allow others to take the lead and to tell you what to do. However, I know that you have to ask questions in order to find out what is and is not possible. Don't cancel arrangements as someone you want to meet is going to be at a large group event. Ring now to make life great again.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 308 65p PER MINUTE

CAPRICORN DECEMBER 21 - JANUARY 20

What can you do to make your life more successful? Do your best my friend, until you know you can do better. Sometimes you really are your own worst taskmaster. The written word is important and emails and texts must be replied to carefully. Your finances and your reputation could depend on it. Ring now to hear why it's worth showing family some extra time and support this month.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 309 65p PER MINUTE

AQUARIUS JANUARY 21 - FEBRUARY 19

A challenging mood could see you saying the opposite of what others want to hear. Try to think about what you say and realise how far is too far to go. Mars could be casting you in more of an aggressive mood than you realise. A new flirtation has all the makings of something really special. Ring now to hear how travel is well starred and why 2017 could be your most life changing year yet.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 310 65p PER MINUTE

PISCES FEBRUARY 20 - MARCH 20

Being different is what makes life so interesting. Don't try to say what others think they want to hear but work instead on putting your point across in a calm and amiable way. You can still work as a team while doing things in your own way. You don't get harmony when everyone sings the same note, do you Pisces? Ring now to hear why it's imperative you don't repeat other's secrets this week.

True Crime. A cold case unsolved for nearly 100 years.

My name is Bella Wright.

In 1919 I was found dead at the side of the road alongside my bicycle in a country lane in Leicestershire.

My murderer was never found.

The Green Bicycle Mystery is a true crime that could have been taken from the Memoirs of Sherlock Holmes.

Now, dramatic evidence is revealed for the first time. But does it solve the case or deepen the mystery?

Essex County Council

North Essex Parking Partnership (College Square Harlow, Essex) (Introduction of No Waiting/No Loading/No Unloading/Limited Waiting/Parking Places) (On Street) Order 2017 Notice of Making

Notice is hereby given that on 23rd June 2017 Colchester Borough Council acting on behalf of the North Essex Parking Partnership in exercise of the delegated powers of the traffic authority Essex County Council granted under an agreement dated 31 March 2011 and after consultation with the Chief Officer of Police HEREBY make the above Order under sections 1(1), 2 (1) to (3), 4(1), 4(2), 32, 35,45,46,49 and 53 and parts III and IV of schedule 9 of the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984.

Essex County Council in the Harlow District of (College Square Harlow, Essex) (Introduction of No Waiting/No Loading/No Unloading/Limited Waiting/Parking Places) (On Street) Order 2017

The effect of this Order will be to;

- Revoke any previous parking restrictions within Playhouse Square Access Road and College Square
 - Introduce No Waiting at any time/No Loading at any time/No Unloading at any time.
 - Introduce Limited Waiting Mon-Sat 8am-11pm 30 Mins No Return 1 Hour
 - Coach parking place
 - Disabled parking places- Limited waiting 3 hours no return 3 hours.
- to the area of the road shown on the attached plan and specified in the schedules to this Order.

A copy of the sealed Order and associated schedule is available for inspection at Harlow District Council Civic Centre Watergardens Harlow CM20 1WG and Chelmsford County Library, Market Road, Chelmsford, CM1 1LH during normal office hours. Copies can be acquired on payment at photocopying charges.

The Order comes into force on 03 July 2017, but if any person wishing to question the validity of the Order or any of its provisions on the grounds that it or they are not within the powers conferred by the Act, or that a requirement of the Act, or of any instrument made under the Act has not been complied with, that person may, within 6 weeks from the date on which the Order is made, apply for the purpose to the High Court.

North Essex Parking Partnership, PO Box 5575, Colchester, CO1 9LT

(Momples Road, Harlow)

(Temporary Prohibition of Traffic & Clearway) Order 2017

Notice is hereby given that the Essex County Council intends, not less than seven days from the date of this notice to make the above Order under Section 14(1) of the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984.

Effect of the order:

- To temporarily close that length of Momples Road, Harlow in the District of Harlow from its junction with Felmongers to its junction with Ladyshot, a distance of approximately 93m.
- A temporary 'No Stopping' restriction will be introduced on both sides of carriageway on the above lengths of roads for the duration of the closure to facilitate the works. Signs will be installed indicating when the No Stopping restriction will be in force.

An alternative route is available via Momples Road, First Avenue, Howard Way, Momples Road and vice versa.

"The District of Harlow (On Street) (Waiting, Loading and Parking) (Consolidation) Order 2011" will be temporarily amended to include the temporary 'No Stopping at Any Time' restriction and suspend any existing parking and waiting restrictions on the above lengths of roads only. All other restrictions and exemptions contained in the aforementioned Order and Amendments to that Order shall remain in force.

The works being undertaken will take place within an 18-month period from 13/07/2017, exact dates will be specified on <http://roadworks.org/>. The roads will be closed to facilitate each phase and then re-opened to the public. Access will be maintained for emergency services. Diversion routes will be signed at each location and residents will be informed of the dates of each phase via letter/leaflet drop and advanced warning signs on the road.

For all enquiries please contact our Contact Centre on 0345 603 7631.

The Order will come into effect on 13/07/2017 and may continue in force for 18 months or until the works have been completed, whichever is the earlier.

(Tawneys Road, Harlow)

(Temporary Prohibition of Traffic) Order 2017

Notice is hereby given that the Essex County Council intends, not less than seven days from the date of this notice, to make the above Order under Section 14(1) of the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984.

Effect of the Order: To temporarily close that length of Tawneys Road, Harlow in the District of Harlow, from its junction with Rushes Mead for a distance of approximately 75 m in a north westerly direction. The closure is scheduled to commence on 24th July 2017 for 19 days, or where stated on a valid permit (EP201EH220891 - Essex County Council). The scheduled dates may vary for these works with appropriate signs showing and/or displayed on www.roadworks.org. The closure is required for the safety of the public and workforce while installation of speed table works are undertaken by Essex County Council.

An alternative route is available via Tawneys Road, The Fortunes, Tilegate Road, Tillicwicks Road, Tending Road, Waterhouse Moor and vice versa.

The Order will come into effect on 13th July 2017 and may continue in force for 18 months or until the works have been completed, whichever is the earlier.

Judo club novices star shine in red belt bouts

A GROUP of six young novice competitors from Harlow Judo Club made their way to Bishop's Stortford to compete in the Red Belt Rumble competition.

The team consisted of Millie Morgan (8), Jack Loft (8), Harry Franks (9), Robert Badaru (8), Thomas Norman (10) and David Franks-Whelan (11).

All the groups were in pools of four players. Millie was up first, and she fought hard to come away with a bronze medal.

Three more bronze medals were won by Jack, Harry and David who all battled well in their respective pools.

Silver medals were won by Robert and Thomas. Robert could have taken the gold, but as he was up against a good quality opponent, it was going to be a tough final. Thomas, meanwhile, was a waza-ari score (five points) in the lead, but unfortunately his opponent collected an ippon (ten points) to snatch the gold from his grasp.

Coach Mick Ellis said: "I have to say that I am extremely proud of my new group of young red belt competitors."

"For some it is their very first competition since turning eight years old and for the others, it is their third competition."

"As nervous as they were, they should all be very proud of themselves."

The club is based in Foldcroft, Harlow. Visit www.harlowjudoclub.com or contact Gill Ellis on gillianellis48@yahoo.co.uk for further information.

Gladwin's ton leads charge

HARLOW Town kept up their challenge for promotion in Shepherd Neame Essex League, Division Three after sweeping aside Stanford Le Hope by 110 runs.

On winning the toss, skipper Scott Alderson elected to bat with Neil Gladwin (109) and Ashley Alderson (73) the stars of the show as they put on a third wicket stand of 125.

Both batsmen combined sound defence with aggression as anything loose was dispatched to the boundary. Alderson in particular tore the home attack apart, while Gladwin never looked like getting out. With the score on 170, Alderson mistiming a lofted drive to fall.

After this, when a score of 300 looked on the cards, Town lost wickets at crucial times and the run rate slowed.

Only Dan Farmer (18), Shaun Alderson (14) and Joe Holland (14) made any impression as Town used up their overs, posting 288-8.

The home side's reply got off to a flying start, with 32 runs scored in the first four overs, and despite losing an early wicket they were well up with the required rate. But then wickets tumbled, and Stanford were dismissed for 178 in just 33.1 overs.

Paul Morrell spearheaded the attack with excellent figures of 4-27, including five maidens in his ten over spell.

Dan Farmer and Shaun Alderson picked up two wickets apiece, with Jack Elston and Ashley Alderson also enjoying success.

Match goes down to wire

THERE was heartache for Harlow as they suffered a last ball defeat at the hands of Billericay in Shepherd Neame Essex League Division One.

At a sunny Marigolds, Harlow were put in and some tight bowling and fielding from the visitors restricted them to 242 all out in the 49th over of 50.

Ubaid Kiani top scored for with 55, while Adam Marchant was the pick of the bowlers, taking 3-4.

Replying, the Billericay innings started well with opener Dave Hinningham reaching 53 before he was out.

The Harlow bowlers kept it tight and were in control for most of the game.

However, some late order hitting from Ross Poulton (37) and Rob Lee (34) brought the result back into the balance, and pushed the game to the very end.

Billericay were nine wickets down with one ball to go and one run required to win, which they duly got.

For Harlow, Mitch Howarde was once gain the pick of the bowlers with 3-23 off his ten.

Harlow now visit Hadleigh this Saturday hoping to get back to winning ways.

A ding-dong show of top ping-pong

Harlow player wins top honours in Essex Schools final

A HOT shot table tennis player from Harlow has taken top honours at the Jack Petchey London and Essex Schools' Table Tennis Singles Finals at the University of East London's SportsDock.

The competition brought together 90 players from 30 schools across London and Essex competing in four age groups.

Alana Mansfield, aged 12, from Burnt Mill Academy lifted the girls' U13 title.

In a tough final she beat Yuvrathi Kumar from Wallington Girls School (Sutton) 8-11, 11-5, 9-11, 11-7, 11-6.

Alana said: "This is a good competition and I was runner up last year so I am very pleased to win."

"I love table tennis and want to play in the Olympics."

The youngster is a member of the BATT'S Club in Harlow and has been playing table tennis for four years.

She played for her country at U11 in the Six Nations in Guernsey and won a silver medal.

The Jack Petchey Schools' Table Tennis programme is aimed at increasing participation and awareness of table tennis in schools and youth clubs in London and Essex.

It stages championships and donates both indoor and outdoor tables with equipment to secondary schools.

Sir Jack Petchey, the 91-year-old founder of the Foundation is passionate about giving young people freedom and opportunity, and he attended the event.

"I've been a fan of table tennis since my own youth," he said.

"It's a fantastic sport and I am delighted to see this partnership develop with more young people from London and Essex taking part."

Trudy Kilcullen, chief executive officer of the Jack Petchey Foundation said: "It's thanks to Jack that this programme started."

Nagged

"He nagged me to contact Table Tennis England and during the last six years 1,734 tables have been donated and almost £1 million invested."

"Since we started it has meant that 36,000 young people have played table tennis regularly and this year alone 1,300 young people have taken part in the competitions."

John Arnold, who is president of the English Schools' Table Tennis Association (ESTTA) said: "This programme has made a tremendous difference to the number of schools that take part in table tennis in London and Essex."

"The team championship has had the greatest effect with the number of schools taking part at county level increasing each year in all eight age groups."
